Girl, Eight, Killed in Gun Accident

R. D. CLAYTON, standing, hands City Manager Raymert Miller the deed to an acre of land adjoining Clayton park to the west. Looking on are Councilman Harry Dudley, City Clerk John Vaughn and City Collector Ronald Lee. The land was given as a memorial to George Rudy and Dora Rudy, father and mother of Mrs. Clayton.

Liquor Store At Kennett Robbed

KENNETT -- A lone gunman entered Sullivans Liquor and Grocery store on highway 25 last night at 8 p.m. and escaped with $85 from the cash register.

The store is owned by Mrs. Beulah Sullivan. A sister, Mrs. Gladys Freeman, was behind the liquor counter when the bandit entered. A second clerk, Mrs. Tillie Jones, in the grocery department was standing behind a counter at the opposite end of the store, but was not held up. The owner was not present.

As the man, described as being about 30 years old, six feet in height and weighing about 180 pounds, entered he approached the counter. With a hankerchief over a pistol, he told Mrs. Freeman:

"You know what this is, and be quick about it!" He ordered her to place all the money in a sack. He then turned and said to Mrs. Jones:

"This goes for you too!"

At this time two customers drove up and the man left by the back door not bothering to go to a second cash register near the grocery clerk.

The holdup man made his escape on foot. An investigation did not disclose any car near the building, and it is believed the man hid near the drainage ditch 30 or 40 feet away.

Police were notified immediately, but there was no trace of the gunman.

Visitor Dies Of Wound

An eight-year-old girl, a visitor in Sikeston, was shot and killed yesterday afternoon by an accidental shotgun blast fired by a seven-year-old boy playmate.

Shiela Diane Ergle of Rockford, Ill, the victim, was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Sally Reese, 134 Sixth St.

She was shot by a seven-year-old cousin in the chest with a 12 gauge single-shot shotgun and was pronounced dead on arrival at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

The fatal shooting occurred in the living room of the Reese home. No other children were struck by the charge. The gun had been kept behind a bedroom door and police reported that the grandmother told them that she hadn't believed it to be loaded

Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick said the shooting occurred at 2 p.m.

According to him there had been no quarrel between the children before the shooting.

The mother and father of the victim were fishing at Whittens Lake near Canalou when the accident happened.

A coroner's inquest was held today at the police station to determine the cause of the death.

Sheila was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ergle of Rockford. She was born Oct. 28, 1956 at Matthews. The family moved to Rockford five years ago. She had completed the third grade last month.

Other survivors are four brothers, James, Billy Wayne, Tommy and Mike Ergle; six sisters, Betty, Barbara, Carolyn, Linda, Nellie, Debbie Ergle; her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Reese, her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ergle of Matthews.

The body is at the Jackson Funeral Home. Services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Matthews Baptist Church with the Rev. William Tollison officiating. Burial will be in the Matthews cemetery.

Probation Revoked

NEW MADRID — A short, varied docket was experienced this week in circuit court with Judge William L. Ragland of Caruthesville presiding.

James Braxton's probation was revoked and he was transported to the state penitentiary in Jefferson City. Braxton had pleaded guilty Feb. 9, to a charge of tampering with a motor vehicle. At that time he was sentenced to the state department of corrections for two years.

Fulton Bibbs, Jr., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of careless and reckless driving. He was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to serve six months in jail. His sentence was suspended upon payment of costs and pending good behavior.

Four divorce actions were heard and were granted:

Lillie Mae Cauley versus Melvin Earl Cauley — decree to plaintiff with care and custody of one minor child and $6 per month child support.

Virgie Graham versus Orval E. Graham — decree to plaintiff.

Brenda Kennard Lancaster versus Harold Boyd Lancaster — decree to plaintiff with care and custody of one minor child and $30 per month child support.

Anna Mae Coffman versus John Brouse Coffman —decree to plaintiff and restoration of former name of Robertson.

Next law day in the court will be July 8, according to Clerk Van S. Sharp, Jr.

Presidential Disability Issues Settled

WASHINGTON AP -- House and Senate conferees finally have agreed on a constitutional amendment for the determination of presidential disability and succession.

A deadlock that persisted for two months and threatened to kill the proposal finally was resolved Wednesday night, and prompt approval of the final version by both House and Senate is expected.

The agreement reached by the conferees would give Congress 21 days to decide the issue when the vice president contests the right of a once disabled president to resume office. The House had fixed a 10-day limit; the Senate had set no limit.

The proposed amendment also provides for the succession to the presidency of the vice president -- now a matter of custom, but without constitutional sanction--and prescribes a method for insuring that the vice presidency always will be filled.

The drive for such an amendment began after President Dwight D. Eisenhower had been disabled by a heart attack in 1955 and picked up speed after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

On the question of keeping the vice presidency filled, the amendment provides that the president would nominate a person to fill a vacancy, subject to approval by majority vote of both houses of Congress.

Motorist Fined $120

NEW MADRID —No felonies were on the docket of magistrate court this week when 30 persons faced Magistrate Erie Wright of Portageville on misdemeanor charges.

A charge of obstructing traffic and driving while intoxicated was filed against Mack Holliday. Holliday was fined $120, sentenced to serve six months in jail, and had his driver's license suspended for one year.

Robert Hendricks, charged with selling intoxicating liquor to minors, was fined $36.

A charge of disturbing the peace brought a fine of $22 to Junior Cantrell. He was also sentenced to serve 90 days in jail, then placed on probation.

Samuel C. Buchanan paid a total of $16 for driving as an unlicensed operator and for driving with defective brakes.

Four truckers of 13 fined for exceeding legal load limits paid as much as $100 this week. Willie Sipes paid $260 for an overage of 3,150 pounds; Carl E. Woodward, $215 for 2,700 pounds; Utley Lumber Company, $190 for 2,450 pounds; and Colson Corporation, $100 for an overage of 1,550 pounds.

Other charges were: improper registration of a motor vehicle — Marshall Johnson and Robinson Wholesale, $15 each; no PSC sticker — Utley Lumber Company and Jason S. Boykin, $110 each; unlicensed operator — Dorothy Jone Patterson, Fannie Mae Nance, Ruthie May Johnson, A. J. Wilkins, and Nebraska Bevely, $15 each; careless and reckless driving — Jessie Thomas Halford, $15, Donald Ditts, $22, and DeWitt Wooten, $45, six months in jail, then probation; excessive speed — James Earl Heath, $20.

Medicare Clears Group

WASHINGTON AP -- The Senate Finance Committee approved today the bill establishing a broad health care program for persons over 65 and raising Social Security payments for 20 million Americans.

The 12-5 vote sent the $6-billion bill to the Senate floor for expected passage in July.

It was the first time the committee had been willing to approve a health care for the aged program tied into the Social Security system. Last year it rejected such a move 11-6.

The committee made numerous changes in the bill passed April 8 by the House and strongly endorsed by President Johnson.

The Committee action came as the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association approached a showdown on whether to urge fellow physicians to boycott Medicare or to delay a decision.

Three Die In Tractor Mishaps

CAIRO, Ill.--Four accidents involving farm tractors have resulted in three fatalities and two injuries in two days.

A retired Wickliffe farmer was fatally injured in a tractor-auto accident near Wickliffe Tuesday.

Jim Curtis, 64, was pinned beneath the tractor following a collision that knocked it from the road into a ditch.

Driver of the car was Rufus Bacorn, 72, of Walnut, Ill.

The accident occurred as Curtis was driving the tractor on U. S. 51, about a mile-and-a-half south of Wickliffe.

Bacorn was charged by Kentudky State Police with involuntary manslaughter, and released on $2,500 bond. His case will be presented to the grand jury in August.

A Dongola youth, James Bracken, 14, was killed Tuesday about 5 p.m., when the front wheels of the tractor he was driving locked, throwing the vehicle into a ditch. Bracken was pinned beneath the tractor.

The accident occurred on the Dongola - Cypress blacktop about two miles east of Dongola.

A rural Dongola farmer was killed Monday when the tractor he was driving overturned on him while working on a farm near Wetaug.

No injuries were reported in an accident involving a tractor and car on the Dogtooth Bend Road Tuesday.

An auto, driven by Alfred Meyer, 52, of Jackson, collided with a disc being pulled by a tractor, dirven by Michael McCoy, 25, of Miller City.

Careers Force Folklores To Quit

By RICHARD SMITH, JR.

All good things must come to an end.

After this summer, the Folklores whose appearances on the Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour was a highlight, are forced to disband.

The Folklores were among 18 finalists in the Mid-South Fair Talent Show held in Memphis, Oct. 1.

Although they were not one of the top three winners, they were asked to appear on the Ted Mack show, taped in Miami Beach Dec. 15. In order to qualify for the finals, the Folklores had to win the preliminaries and semi-finals in their division. More than 1,000 participated from seven states in the preliminaries and 48 in the semi-finals.

The Folklores appeared on television Jan. 17.

The singing group is made up of four boys and one girl.

The boys have graduated from high school and will go along different paths. George Gilmore plans to attend the University of Missouri at Columbia as a law major. Mike Jensen will major in television and radio journalism at Memphis State. Jim Caskey will join the Navy for aviation and electronics training. Larry Bond will attend Ole Miss, at Oxford, where he has a music scholarship.

This leaves Jennie Winters, the vocalist and feminine attraction of the quintet, in Sikeston High School, to be graduated in 1966.

This talented group first started with only three boys, Joe Childress, Gilmore, and Caskey, and their ukes at a Boy Scout camp in July of 1962. They played together and decided to organize a folk singing group. They called their group the "Gleesome Threesome." George had a small uke and the others baritone ukes.

They practiced until they thought they were good enough for the Kiwanis Talent Show in Charleston in August of that year. The group became more proficient; George began playing a banjo, Jim, a tenor guitar, and Joe, a six-string guitar.

After they had been playing together for a year, Skip Crumpecker joined with his guitar, however, for only about two months -- until graduation. When Joe and Skip graduated in 1963, Bond replaced Joe, and Rick Groves took Skip's position; however, Rick did not play a guitar but the bass fiddle.

After Larry and Rick took over, things really got started, and the Folklores began to move. Rick played throughout his last year in high school. Mike Jensen took the bass spotlight when Rick graduated in 1964.

About that same time the vocalist, Miss Winters, was introduced into the group.

The Folklores have made many appearances before audiences of Jaycees, Kiwanians, Lions, Legionnaires, Odd Fellows, Scouts, and church organizations.

Some of the most outstanding performances have been on the KFVS-TV Breakfast Show, three years at the cotton carnival, two years in the Charleston Lions' Minstrel Show, two years at the Jackson Talent Show, where on occasions they received first place; two years at the Mid-South Fair in Memphis, dance party in Paducah, Ky., on WPSD-TV; at a banquet held in Cairo for the Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois; and the Chamber of Commerce annual banquet. They were invited to play as Missouri's representative in the state pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

The Folklore's are sad about the dissolution of their close-knit quintet.

When asked about how they felt, each had a quick comment to make.

Junta Urges Many Changes

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic AP -- The Dominican junta proposed major changes Wednesday night in the peace plan put forward by the Organization of American States, while the rebels asked only minor modifications.

The replies of both sides seemed to put them in virtual agreement on only one major part of the OAS plan proposed Friday -- the holding of elections in six to nine months. The junta said, however, that the elections should be subject to postponement if the OAS found this necessary.

The lack of agreement seemed to leave the next move up to the OAS, which has a three-man peace committee negotiating with both sides.

U.S. Asks Nuclear Talks

WASHINGTON AP -- The United States has asked the Soviet Union to agree to a date at the earliest possible time for reopening 17-nation disarmament talks at Geneva aimed at negotiating an expanded nuclear test-ban treaty and an agreement to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Administration officials, awaiting a Soviet reply, said they see little prospect of any real progress in either of these fields in the near future.

Fresh attention was focused on the nuclear proliferation problem Wednesday in a Senate speech by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N. Y., who called on President Johnson to make non-proliferation "a central priority of American policy."

The White House, commenting on the Kennedy speech Wednesday in response to an inquiry, said it was "glad that Sen. Kennedy is also interested in this field."

Biggest Balloon Passes Trials

BEDFORD, England AP -- What is billed as the world's biggest balloon has passed its first trials.

The balloon is 137 feet long, 52 feet in diameter, and has a capacity of 156,000 cubic feet. Costing $42,000, it was made and had its first test at the Royal Air Force Station at Cardington, near here.

Leslie Speed, 59, designed it with the idea of carrying timber out of otherwise inaccessible forests in Canada's British Columbia. It is designed to lift three-ton logs clear of forests and load them on trucks. It also can drag a log weighing six tons.

Speed said to build roads in the logging area would cost $140,000 a mile

Check Writer Held

Police arrested William Pugh, formerly of Kennett, on a charge of passing fradulent checks to at least 12 merchants in the city.

Yesterday afternoon Gilbert Clinton, owner of Midtowner Motel, reported to police that he had received one bad check of the man, who was staying at his motel, and that Pugh had written two more checks which made Clinton suspicious.

Police made the arrest at 12:45 p.m. yesterday and police said that Pugh gave them a statement that he had cashed fraudulent checks in town while using the aliases of John Brown and John B. Brown. Police said that they did not know the amounts for which the checks were written.

Pugh is absent without leave from the army according to the police.

Bobby Davis of 222 Davis was arrested on a peace disturbance charge.

Three Injured In Area Mishaps

Two persons were injured in a two-car collision yesterday at 6:40 a.m. on Route J, three miles west of Malden.

A 1965 Chevrolet, driven by James Gurlan, Poplar Bluff, was going west, when a 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Norma Sue Borders, 28, route one, Bernie, traveling east, went out of control on the slick roadway, going over the center line and striking the Gurlan car, the state highway patrol reported.

Injured was Mrs. James Gurlan, 21, Poplar Bluff, who received fractured facial bones, and the driver of the second car, who was bruised. Mrs. Gurlan was taken to the Baptist Hospital in Memphis.

Donna Simmons, 28, Portageville, received a neck injury in an accident at 11:15 a.m. yesterday at the junction of highways 61 and 162 at Portageville. She was traveling north in a 1965 Plymouth, and collided with a 1958 Chevrolet driven by Annie Lee Johnson, 34, Portageville, who made a left turn into a driveway. The Simmons woman was treated by a physician.

Salute 39 Years Service Of Charleston Superintendent

CHARLESTON -- J. H. Marshall, retiring superintendent of the Charleston schools, was given a dinner at the Charlestonian, Saturday at 7:30 p.m. by the board of education in acknowledgement of 39 years faculty service.

Marshall was elected a teacher in 1926, principal in 1927 and superintendent in 1946. Those attending the dinner included members of the board of education when he first was elected a teacher.

The roll was called and minutes read when he was elected teacher, principal and superintendent.

Mrs. Clifton Banta presented Mr. Marshall a book containing letters of appreciation for his service.

The tables were decorated in blue and white. After the dinner was over "Oh Charleston High" was sung.

Among the 56 present were Marshall's wife and their two sons and wives, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Marshall, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Marshall.

Marshall will retire July 1 and W. R. Pierce, Jr., the assistant superintendent will become superintendent.

Death Held Accidental

CHAFFEE — A coroner's inquest yesterday returned a verdict that Clarence Abernathy, 83, former Scott County road supervisor, died of an accidental gunshot wound.

He was found dead Tuesday night in his former home in Oran, according to Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick. Abernathy had made daily visits to his old home since his wife's death in 1963. He lived with a daughter, Mrs. McGoy Smith, in Oran.

Abernathy was supervisor until 1957.

Injured In Bailing Out

Lt. Clyde LaPlant, Jr., nephew of Clifford LaPlant, suffered cuts, bruises, and black eye last week when he bailed out of a jet fighter plane near Ogden, Utah.

The 1,200-mile-per hour jet caught fire as Lieutenant LaPlant was returning from a flight to Burley, Idaho, and crashed 100 miles northwest of Burley. Lieutenant LaPlant lives in West Memphis, and is a former Sikeston resident.

Rain Big Crop Aid

BENTON: -- Yesterday's rain had a tremendous impact on area crops, according to farm management agent Richard McIntosh of the Missouri University extension center.

Corn has reached the critical silking stage, he said, and the near-inch rainfall will boost the per-acre yield an estimated 10 to 20 bushels. The corn is drawing one-fourth inch of moisture a day from the soil now, McIntosh said.

"So we needed about twice as much rain as we got," he said.

The weather forecast for today predicts partly cloudy skies with chances of rain this afternoon and tonight.

Rainfall in Sikeston yesterday measured .8 inch. Vanduser received about .9 inch.

Moisture needs for cotton were not critical, McIntosh said, but the rain brought up soybeans planted after the wheat crop.

U.S. Softens Pay Demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appears to be softening its insistence that the Soviet Union and other members of the United Nations refusing to pay peacekeeping assessments must pay their dues or lose their General Assembly vote.

President Johnson's aides indicate the President still is weighing what to say about — as he put it—"the future of the United Nations" in his speech to the U.N.'s 20th anniversary session in San Francisco Friday.

The U.N. Charter's Article 19 provides that members falling two years in arrears "shall have no vote" in the General Assembly. The Soviet Union, France, and Communist bloc countries face the potential penalty because of their refusal to pay for United Nations peacekeeping operations in the Congo and Middle East. U.N. finances are more than $100 million in the hole.

Humphrey Visit Hailed

PARIS (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's 80-minute visit with President Charles de Gaulle Sunday may prove to be a turning point for the better in the strained relations between France and the United States.

The two allies will continue to be at odds over such vital issues at Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But highly informed French sources feel Humphrey's call on the French president punctured a ballooning discord which had reached serious proportions.

The visit was considered a success on both sides.

Just how far they ranged in their talk is not publicly known.

Pope Returned To Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. AP -- Duane Earl Pope, 22, has been returned to the Nebraska Penitentiary for safe keeping before his trial in connection with the June 4 robbery of the Farmers State Bank in Big Springs, Neb., and the killing of three persons.

Pope surrendered to authorities in Kansas City after a nationwide search had been conducted for him.

Helen Keller, Nearing 85, Enjoys Quiet, Gentle Life

EASTON, Conn. AP -- As Helen Keller approaches her 85th birthday, she's enjoying a quiet and gentle life.

She has her flowers, her garden, her dog Tinker, and the birds.

"All of the birds are her friends," says a close companion of the blind and deaf author.

"Miss Helen is living in retirement," a friend says. "That covers it."

The world still beats a path to her country home at Arcan Ridge, only to find the doors politely, but firmly, shut.

But close friends and neighbors stop in occasionally for tea, and there will be cake and champagne when she observes her birthday Sunday at home.

Miss Keller's traveling days are just about over. She still receives awards, but doesn't make the trips to pick them up.

A friend says Miss Keller is in the best of health for a woman of 85, although her vitality is waning. In the past two or three years she has given up most of her writing and all public speaking.

Sunday's celebration will be more or less a family affair.

An illness 19 months after Miss Keller's birth in Tuscumbia, Ala., left her blind and deaf. Through the efforts of her teacher, Anne Sullivan, Miss Keller was transported from a world of silence and dark rage to one of communication and faith.

CONFUSION IS JUST ONE OF THE PROBLEMS

The logic of bureaucrats is a wondrous thing. Its intricacy is a spellbinding challenge to understanding. In an attempt to promote public understanding about bureaucracy and the confusion it creates with the halls of Congress, a newspaper printed the following -- with apologies to Lewis Carroll, author of Alice in Wonderland:

"Why is that man waving his arms and shouting?" asked the Hatter.

"Can't you understand?" Alice replied. "He's trying to convince the other members of Congress that they must spend $110 million to buy land in Minnesota to provide a better life for wild ducks so that there will be more ducks for hunters to kill."

"But why is he so excited?"

"He is urging the committee members to hurry up and buy the land before another agency of the government drains all the water off of it."

"But," persisted the Hatter, "doesn't the other agency spend the government's money to drain the land?"

"Precisely," replied Alice.

"Then why would they want to give one agency money to buy land in order to keep some other agency from spending money to drain it? Why wouldn't it be simpler to. . .?"

"There you go, Hatter, being logical again. Why can't you just sit quietly and listen to the committee?"

If this were the only problem we had to cope with in dealing with bureaucracy, we could be more optimistic about the future of America. But as it is, the logic of the bureaucrats is only one of many problems we face.

The cost of bureaucracy is growing each year. In 1930, the civilian payroll of the federal government was almost $1.1 billion. In 1962, the cost of civilians on the federal payroll was $14.8 billion. In 1950, ten percent of the total working force was employed at all levels of government - federal, state, and local. By 1962, the figure had risen to 13 per cent. That means that approximately one out of every eight workers is employed at some level of government.

There were 32,000 employees in agricultural civil service in 1933. Since then, the number of farms has been diminished by almost one half, but federal employment in agriculture has more than tripled to 101,000. This trend could reach the ridiculous point where there would be more farm bureaucrats than farmers.

Bureaucracy in America is greatly removed from our constitutional principles. The federal controls and the regimentation that go along with it can be evidenced in every phase of our daily lines.

Government regulates railroads, electric power companies, pipelines, interstate truckers, barge lines, and broadcasters.

Agriculture operates under price supports and production controls, and in many areas can already be said to be socialized.

The banking business is supervised by government.

Federal power also enforces minimum wages; polices labor relations; grants and denies subsidies in a wide range of projects; policies provide business, and condemns private property in the interest of federal projects.

Big government continues to grow because no one seeks to stop it. When the vigilance of the people is replaced with apathy, the quest for power goes on unchecked. The mistaken idea "that government must grow as the population grows," has been widely proclaimed. But, efficient and more realistic operation in all other situations of increased growth and complexity usually takes power away from the central authority.

The federal government has moved into more and more projects that should be left to the states, local governments, and individuals. It is already too big to be operated efficiently or economically.

The size and power of the federal government are undermining the whole fibre of our republic through a disregard for the sovereignty of the states and by encroachment on the lives of the people.

The tendency to ask Washington to solve problems has been partly caused by two world wars in which the people unquestioningly accepted federal expansion and controls. Since then, the people have not looked back to their own states as they should.

We must also realize that the states themselves are partly responsible because they have delegated much of their responsibility. The full blame cannot be placed on the bureaucrats who are always making new plans for federal expansion. The people and the states must bear responsibility, because they did not take action themselves to solve problems or to resist federal encroachment.

They are also responsible because they accepted the mistaken idea that if the federal government does something for them it costs nothing.

The mistaken ideology of liberating the masses through more, rather than less control of the people is unfortunately being accepted by too many of our citizens today.

And only the citizens can reverse this trend. If they do not, they will have the kind of government they deserve.

WELCOME BROTHER INDIAN!

The Blackfeet Indian Tribe of Montana is waging a "War on Poverty" of its own -- using Right to Work as a non-poverty meal ticket. The determined action of the Blackfeet has had the Interior Department's Bureau of Indian Affairs, the AFL-CIO, and some assorted Congressmen in a tizzy! When contacted here in Washington the Bureau sought to laugh the whole thing off. The AFL-CIO in Montana tried to call the whole thing off -- with assists from Washington political sources. And Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall ducked out of the picture, with his press agent saying the project on which the Indians were demanding the Right to Work without having to join a union would be completed "before the lawyers finish pondering." The National Committee is seeking the identity of the Blackfeet tribal leaders -- for possible testimony at the 14(b) Congressional hearings which are expected.

An editorial in the Rocky Mountain Medical Journal says: "Recently a major American pharmaceutical firm was successful in suing a former employee for selling secrets of research and production of an antibiotic to an Italian drug manufacturer -- however, not until long after the Italian firm, whose research and development costs had thus been paid by the American competitor, had underbid the same firm in a large sale of this drug back to the United States government. . . Vigorous protests by many persons and organizations are now being made against purchases by our government of foreign drugs produced on the basis of formulae and methods stolen from ethical American manufacturers."

CHECK OLD REFRIGERATORS

Reports from every section of the country within the last few weeks have told of the deaths of children who shut themselves into unused refrigerators while playing. More than once, too, a youngster has been found and removed from a box only after lack of oxygen had resulted in irreparable damage to the brain. In any event, the tragic occurrences in question should warn every community in the nation to institute a careful check of any such perils. It is a simple matter to remove locks or doors and thus make the old boxes harmless.

In view of the likelihood that health warning labels will eventually be required on cigarette packages, it gives one pause to be told that scaring people is not necessarily the best way to get them to do, or not to do, something for their own good.

This conclusion about human behavior comes from a psychologist with the University of North Carolina School of Public Health and is based primarily on a study of an oral polio vaccination campaign in Florida.

There it was found, reports Dr. C. David Jenkins, that the fear of a disease or the risk of getting a disease doesn't seem to encourage people to seek a way of preventing it or reducing the risk.

"Just Figure How Much We Would Save If We Could Afford to Buy Those Things"

ED VALTMAN—THE HARTFORD TIMES

Excessive scare campaigns may, in fact, have just the opposite result. Fear of cancer, he says, has actually driven some women away from screening clinics.

Apparently the need is to create a moderate degree of concern in people--something more than apathy but less than fear.

Yet some of the people in Florida took the vaccine because "it was the thing to do. It was socially fashionable. It was a way to become a part of the community."

The psychologist credits newspapers with doing a better job of conveying health information to the public than any other communications medium.

Unfortunately: "Teaching facts doesn't always motivate people's behavior," he says. "There are more emotional factors involved in behavior than a string of facts."

MATTERS MADE WORSE

Mr. Brown had just returned to the city and was introduced to the new nurse, who was unusually pretty.

"She is sensible and scientific, too," said Mrs. Brown, "and she says she will allow no one to kiss the baby while she is near."

"No one would want to," replied Mr. Brown.

"Indeed!" snapped the fond mother.

"I mean not while she is near," faltered the father, endeavoring to make things better.

The nurse did not stay long.

Alchemists are pictured historically as naive medieval scientists bending over hot furnaces earnestly cooking up recipes for transmuting common metals into gold. The truth is that by the 16th century most alchemists were cheerful charlatans plying what was perhaps the world's first modern confidence game. Gold-makers with "secret formulas" operated all over Europe, despite a unique occupational hazard. A gold-maker could find himself in bad trouble if he didn't produce, and in worse trouble if he did. This odd dilemma arose from the greed and power of the rulers who were the gold-makers' chief patrons. Petty German tyrants had no qualms about kidnaping any well - reputed alchemist passing through their territory and jailing and torturing him to compel his services. One Scotus, the best known of his day, was permanently crippled in this way before he escaped from a Teuton princeling. If, on the other hand, the alchemist came selling his knowledge -- for a whopping fee and heavy expenses--he might "make" a little gold while deferring his getaway. Typical of this ploy was Georg Honauer's method. While he and the Duke of Wurtemburg waited outside his locked and empty laboratory for a mixture to cook, a small boy crept from a chest inside to salt the pot with gold dust. It was with no sense of humor, but as a warning to others, that the Duke in 1597 had Honauer tinsel - draped like a Christmas tree and hanged in Stuttgart from a 35-foot iron gallows which was gilt-painted for the occasion. The gold gallows soon became a symbol that ended alchemical fakery.

OUR PHYSICIAN POPULATION GROWS

It is periodically charged that the number of practicing physicians in this country is not large enough to meet the need and the demand for medical services.

If such a fear has any validity at all, it would seem that the lack is being rapidly made up. The American Medical Association recently reported that the ratio of doctors per 100,000 population has increased from 137.8 to 146.7 in only three years. There is every reason to believe that the trend will continue. More students are enrolled in our medical schools than ever before, and this year's graduating classes totaled the highest in history. The number of those schools has grown from 77 to 87 in 17 years, five more are to be built shortly, and another six are in the planning stage.

The AMA News urges that physicians contribute to the future of medicine by giving guidance and inspiration to secondary school students who may be considering medical careers and must soon make a positive or negative decision. In its words, "By assisting these schools in their search for dedicated and well qualified students, today's physicians can assure a strong profession and a healthy America for tomorrow." No one who knows the caliber of the medical profession will doubt that such a challenge will be met.

So, there seem to be no grounds for believing that the standards of medical care in this country, which certainly are not surpassed anywhere, will suffer. There is, on the other hand, every reason for believing that those standards, aided by new discoveries and techniques, some of the literally revolutionary character, will surely improve.

KING-SIZED ALL THE WAY

A short time ago the Association of American Railroads issued the 13th edition of a leaflet called "Quiz On Railroads and Railroading". It proposes and answers 200 questions concerning every facet of this great industry -- from the size of the "Railroad Navy" (1,304 waterborne vessels of various kinds which are owned and operated by railroads) to the history of the caboose, a term used as early as 1855.

Of more immediate importance, "Quiz' ' provides some king-sized facts concerning the railroads' contribution to this country, its economy, and its security. In 1962, to cite a few, railroads performed 107 passenger miles of service for every man, woman and child in the country, and also, transported a ton of freight 3,190 miles and carried 41 pounds of mail. In the same year they employed 700,126 people who received salaries and wages of a staggering $4,662,113,000. Their tax bill over the 1956-62 period averaged $1 billion 13 million a year. And they spend close to $1.4 billion annually for supplies and services of a thousand and one kinds -- plus over $800 million for improvement to plant and equipment.

Then, when it comes to the national defense, the figures are still king-sized. During World War II they operated 113,891 troop trains. They transported some 42,700,000 members of the armed forces in these, in hospital trains, and in special cars. This does not include the millions of service people traveling singly or in small groups.

Figures such as these almost literally make the mind reel. Only a trained mathematician can visualize them. But they do give, to all of us, a vivid picture of the enormous importance of the railroad industry and of the urgent need, so widely discussed and publicized in late years, for legislation which will free them of obsolete regulatory fetters and permit them to do a still more effective job for the nation they have served so well and so long.

CONTROVERSIAL PATRIOTISM

A few years ago patriotism could not possibly be labeled controversial. People of great prominence, lesser lights and anti-patriots have succeeded in making patriotic fervor a subject of wide discussion and even derision.

Patriotism is not so proudly displayed by many of our citizens as it once was by all. This change of attitude did not just happen overnight. It is the product of years of skillful propaganda aimed at weakening the resolve of the American people by causing them to forget the greatness of America.

If patriotism had been maintained as a profitable attitude its decline in popularity would not have happened. Patriotism lost popularity in connection with a crusade of sophistication.

Parents have gone to Court to get their children in school excused from reciting the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. Faculty members and students have refused to sing simple oaths of loyalty to the United States and were not kidded into acceptance of proper values.

Comedians specializing in "sick" jokes make distasteful jokes about patriotism, and slick magazines specialize in lambasting patriotic organizations. Public officials recently found pressures compelling them to denounce good citizens as super-patriots, extremists or members of the "lunatic fringe."

Games in sports once began only after the playing of the National Anthem. Now, in many places the National Anthem is no longer played before the starting of the game.

A correction in the right direction would be to again cause freedom to be fashionable and patriotism profitable by steadfastly and joyously commending these virtues.

Everyone affected would soon feel more certain freedom shall endure. HLH

KHE SANH, South Viet Nam AP -- Two girl missionaries--an American and an Australian --are housekeeping in the wilds here in a mountain area long dominated by guerrillas.

They are Miss Eugenia Johnston of Houghton, N. Y., and Miss Nancy Costello of Sydney, Australia.

"We work with primitive tribes who don't have a written language," said Miss Johnston, who is slender and dark and wears glasses. "We write an alphabet for them, make textbooks and teach them to read and write.

"Then we brign them the word of God." She and Miss Costello, who is blonde and fair-skinned, represent the Summer Institute of Linguistics at Los Angeles and the Wycliffe Bible Translators of Santa Ana, Calif.

Both girls raised funds from church groups to finance their missionary task and each took a three-month course in jungle survival before coming here.

"They gave us a machete, and we had to make our own house and furniture," said Miss Costello. "But they did let us have matches and a snakebite kit."

The girls live now in a two-room, thatch - roofed bamboo stilt house, shaded by coffee trees, at the edge of the village.

It is several miles from the military compound in which dwells a U. S. Army Special Forces team of 14 men and several hundred native troops. The compound is protected by sandbags, mines, outposts and barbed wire.

The bamboo paradise is guarded only by a pet monkey, "Scooter." As some of the villagers regard monkey as a delicacy, "Scooter" is kept firmly leased to bamboo stilt, where he does cartwheels all day long.

"We're not afraid," said Miss Johnston, who has spent nine months here and three years in Viet Nam. "Our only problem is the perpetual threat that the Viet Cong will push us out."

The American soldiers keep a watchful eye on the girls and periodically bring them gifts of food. The girls repaid them recently by cooking them a Sunday dessert of pies and cookies.

Just as Robinson Crusoe had a man servant on his island, the two girls have a butler, too. He is one of the Montagnards, or mountain tribes people whom the girls are teaching.

"His name isn't Friday but Ayooq," said Miss Johnson. "Ayooq helps us prepare vegetables and sweeps the mission school. He'll do anything to be helpful. He's very conscientious."

Teaching the poverty-striken mountain people to read and write isn't easy. Their language has 62 sounds, including 40 vowels, and has at least 30 different tribal dialects.

"We work with the Brow tribe," said Miss Johnston. "There are about 70,000 of them here and in Laos.

"We like our life. We feel this is the good country, and these are the good people up here.

"They're very open and honest and loyal people. And if they like you, they'll do anything for you--because they trust you."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — When 50 Congressmen junketed to Europe last weekend to see the International Air Show in Paris, it made front-page headlines. But when a majority of the U.S. Senate voted to let a handful of big corporations keep any important patents derived from government-financed research, it missed the big headlines.

The junket to Europe cost the taxpayers less than $100,000. The government research voted for a few big companies cost $5 billion.

Actually the $5 billion is part of a $5 billion research appropriation which the federal government allocates each year to defense contractors, space companies, big drug companies, and a few universities for medical research. The vote on letting the drug companies keep U.S. - financed patents comes up before the Senate this week.

"There is no more outrageous thing that can be done to the public interest," entreated Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, the Democratic whip, just before the Senate voted. "The government is being importuned to giveaway private patent rights on everything that the government does in the field of research."

Previously Long had been successful in persuading the Senate to reserve for the public the patents derived from government-financed research on the desalinization of water, helium gas research, the mass transit bill, and in the coal research act.

But as the really profitable patents pertaining to space and national defense came up for a vote, the lobbyists began to converge on Washington. They included representatives of the American Patent Bar Association, the electronics industry, aircraft and space industries, the chemical industry, and the big drug companies.

—TOO MUCH PRESSURE—

"The pressure is too great," confided Sen. Walter Mondale, the new Democrat from Minnesota, supposed to be a Hubert Humphrey liberal.

Lobbyists for some of the big Detroit industries called on Sen. Phil Hart of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Anti-monopoly Subcommittee, supposed to be a crusader against monopoly. He too chickened.

When the Long amendment came up for a vote, the man who led the adroit move to table it was Sen. "Three - Gun" Tom Dodd of Connecticut, a crusader against juvenile delinquency.

Dodd is a member of the Space Committee, but has attended not one meeting this year and only one last year. When he successfully moved to table the Long amendment, it cost the public enough money to have paid for several hundred Boy's Towns.

He got help from a so-called Republican liberal, Sen. Jack Javits of New York, who operates a law firm on the side and frequently talks out of both sides of his mouth where corporate interests are concerned.

The two Kennedy brothers also voted for the big $5 billion giveaway, as did two other ardent Kennedy backers, young Birch Bayh of Indiana and young Joe Tydings of Maryland.

Ed Long of Missouri, who filled the shoes of trust-busting Estes Kefauver on the Senate Judiciary Committee, voted for the big patent giveaway. So did Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, elected by charging Sen. Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma with speculating on the commodity market.

Sen. John Pastore of Rhode Island, who led the Senate battle to give space patents to American Tel & Tel and the Communications Satellite Corporation, voted for the big patent giveaway. This was not surprising. It WAS surprising that his young Rhode Island colleague Claiborne Pell joined him.

Stuart Symington of Missouri voted for the big patent giveaway. He usually votes with big business. So does Scoop Jackson of Washington state, home of the Boeing bomber.

Lister Hill of Alabama, crusader and author of federal financing for hospitals, in this case voted to finance the research of very healthy billion-dollar corporations. Bob Byrd of West Virginia, who quibbles over a few hundred thousand dollars going to unemployed unwed mothers in the District of Columbia, cast his vote for the billion-dollar giveaway.

Vance Hartke of Indiana, who almost succeeded in blocking a military man, Gen. William F. McKee, as head of the Federal Aviation Agency, in this case voted with the big space contractors who have been working with McKee through NASA.

All of the above except Javits are Democrats; most of them smart enough to know better.

—ONE LONE REPUBLICAN—

All of the Republicans except one voted for the patent giveaway — Hiram Fong, first Chinese-American to be elected to the Senate. He stood up against the space lobby.

It's sometimes said the Republicans aren't smart enough to know the public interest. But one Republican smart enough to know the score is George Aiken of Vermont, who had been razzing Johnson for delaying the reappointment of consumers' defender Charles Ross to the Federal Power Commission. Aiken voted for the giveaway.

Another significant Republican vote was that of John Williams of Delaware, who has been waging a year-long campaign against the few thousand dollars involved in Bobby Baker's influence peddling. He voted for the billion-dollar giveaway to the big space corporations. So did Thruston Morton of Kentucky, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, and another ex - national committeeman, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Democrats who voted against the giveaway, 26 in all, were led by Clint Anderson, N. M., and Mike Mansfield, Mont., the Majority Leader. They were joined by Bartlett, Alaska; Bass, Tenn.; Burdick, N. D.; Church, Idaho; Clark, Pa.; Douglas, Ill.; Ellender, La.; Fulbright, Ark.; Gurening, Alaska; McGovern, S. D.; McIntyre, N. H.; McNamara, Mich.; Metcalf, Mont.; Montoya, N. M.; Morse and Neuberger, Ore.; Moss, Utah; Nelson and Proxmire, Wis.; Talmadge, Ga.; Yarborough, Tex.; Young, Ohio; and, of course, Long, La.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Use of Out-Of-Date Data by Federal Agency Wastes Millions of Dollars Intended for Jobless.

Washington, D. C.: -- A ten-cent phone call could have prevented the misuse of many millions of government dollars. But the call was not made.

No money was stolen--just misused. Few outsiders know just how many millions of dollars were wasted by one agency, the Area Redevelopment Administration, in an effort to help the unemployed.

At a minimum, the ineptly used funds come to over $17 million. It could run ten times that. Only the comptroller general of the U. S., Joe Campbell, and his eagle - eyed General Accounting Office know.

They delved into appropriations totaling over $700 million. They came up with the charge that the ARA threw millions into areas where improved conditions did not warrant the expenditure of the relief funds.

And, says the Comptroller, the ARA on the other hand did not spend enough money in depressed regions where more funds should have been spent.

This misuse of federal millions resulted from the ARA's failure to check the latest unemployment figures in the districts to which they rushed money for public works.

The ARA says it did not have current figures available.

Yet such data was available just down the street from ARA headquarters. The up to date figures on joblessness were and have been in the Labor Dept. One phone call could have given the ARA all the statistics it needed.

Instead, the ARA last year and during the end of 1963 used 1961 statistics or the data taken from one early month in 1962.

As a result hundreds of millions of dollars were spent on the basis of figures anywhere from 5 to 16 months old.

Thus, the millions were allocated in areas despite the fact that there had been "significant" changes in those cities and regions. We have the word of Comptroller Campbell that the changes were significant.

Thus cities which did not need heavy assistance got it. And depressed areas grew more depressed when they did not receive the full amounts they needed to help their growing joblessness.

In all, the ARA got $400 million for accelerated public works with which to create jobs in needy areas in Oct. 1962. Then in May 1963 it got another $450 million.

ARA's task was to discover how many jobless there were in each needy district or city. Then to spend money in that region or community accordingly. There was a set formula depending on the number of unemployed.

Therefore, much depended on the currency of the data. If a city had an increase in joblessness, money for job-making public works was poured in.

But instead of using month-old figures available over in the Labor Dept.'s Bureau of Employment Security, the ARA used 1961 and early 1962 data.

Thus, one Midwest city was overpaid $17.3 million because the job situation had improved rapidly since 1961 and there were far fewer unemployed.

But a city such as Miami, Fla., which had an influx of jobless between 1961 and 1964 was underpaid -- or underaided -- by almost $4 million. By using the 1961 figure of Miami unemployed, the ARA in 1963 and 1964 overlooked the tens of thousands of needy Cuban refugees.

Mr. Campbell in a statement deplored the ARA's re-use of "the same non-current data it had used" in the past.

And recently, when the Labor Dept. attempted to secure funds for even more exact, up-to-the-minute studies of the jobless, Congress refused to give the department some $2.5 million.

So the study now won't be made. Seems penny-wise and millions foolish.

Mrs. Lorene Limbaugh

Mrs. Limbaugh To Retire Sunday

Mrs. Lorene Cain Limbaugh, an employee of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, will retire Sunday, June 27.

Mrs. Limbaugh, well known to Sikeston and the surrounding area as "The Chief" has worked for the Telephone Company for 37 years. She was first employed in the Sikeston office on August 6, 1926, as an operator. At that time, the office was located in the Milem building on Front Street.

In June of 1941, she went to Kennett as Chief Operator-Cashier and remained there until September of 1944. While Mrs. Limbaugh was in Kennett, the Telephone Office Building burned and a temporary switchboard had to be set up in a truck.

In September of 1944, Mrs. Limbaugh was made Chief Operator in the Sikeston office and remained here until her retirement.

Many changes have taken place in these 37 years and Mrs. Limbaugh has had a part in all of these changes such as from the manual switchboard to the modern dial system that is now in operation.

The Telephone Company officials will honor her with a dinner in Cape Girardeau tonight. Friday afternoon the employees of the Sikeston office will honor her with a tea at the Telephone building.

Community Club Meets With Mrs. Gruen

Mrs. Nelson Gruen was hostess to the Canalou Community Club on Wednesday afternoon, June 16 at the home of her mother, Mrs. Dessie Shepherd, in Canalou. Mrs. Cordell Bixler was a guest and Mrs. Bert Moore renewed her membership.

Public Affairs chairman, Mrs. W. C. Burnett, presented the lesson on the Probate Court. Probably because the work of this court is not spectacular, many people know little about it. This is unfortunate because nearly every family comes to this court sooner or later, since it has to do with the settling of estates. The Probate Court makes sure that the provisions of wills are carried out, or lacking a will, that the property of the deceased goes to heirs according to law. It protects the rights of creditors of the deceased and collects amounts due to estate. It also has supervisory jurisdiction over the estates of minors and those whom the court finds mentally incompetent.

It is impossible to cover all phases of the court's work in such a lesson, but the importance of leaving a will properly drawn by an attorney was explained. That is first step in making the work of the Probate Court effective.

The club will meet with Mrs. W. O. Burnett on July 21 when a string trio will give a program.

Reds Top Cards 6-2

Jim Maloney did not pitch a no hitter, but he didn't have to in order to beat the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

The big Cincinnati righthander did hurl a six-hitter and struck out 11 as the Reds beat the Red Birds, 6-2, in Cincinnati.

The story read the same in New York where the Yankees clobbered the A's, 8-3, piling up all their runs in the first two innings.

Still not hitting and not pitching, the Cardinals were an easy touch for Maloney, who retired the first 14 batters to face him before Ken Boyer singled. Maloney threw a no-hitter for 10 innings in his last start before losing.

The Reds had a 6-0 lead off loser Curt Simmons and reliever Don Dennis before pinch-hitter Tito Francona singled home two runs for St. Louis in the seventh.

The defeat sank the Cardinals deeper into seventh place with a 30-36 record, 11 1/2 games behind league - leading Los Angeles.

The Yankees bombed the A's with four singles, a sacrifice fly and Ray Barker's homer off loser Diego Segui in the first inning for five runs and a two-run single by Bobby Richardson highlighted a three-run second.

Whitey Ford protected the lead for six innings before Steve Hamilton relieved in the seventh.

Ronnie Sheldon 2-2 of the A's will try to stop his old Yankee mates today against Mel Stottlemyre 7-3.

The Cardinals will send Tracy Stallard 3- 2 against Jim O'Toole 1-5 and the Reds in a night game.

French Star Defeats Clark

MELUN, France AP -- This has been a memorable June for 29-year-old Michel Jazy, the French track ace who became a national hero when he ran a world record mile in 3:53.6 on June 9.

The week before his mile feat at Rennes, Jazy had run the fastest mile ever by a European, a 3:55.5 at Paris on June 3. After his 3:53.6 mile he set a European record on June 11 in the 5,000 meters of 13:29, and in the succeeding days won at various meets in eastern France.

His latest June achievement came Wednesday in this Paris suburb when he bettered the world record for the two miles with a 8:22.6 in beating Australia's Ron Clarke by 14 yards. In the process, he bettered his own world mark of 7:49.2 for the 3,000 meters with a 7:49.

"The two miles is a little short for me and I expected to be defeated," Clarke said. "But I can still be happy because I bettered not only my best time for the distance, which was 8:32, but in making 8:24.8, I also bettered the old world record of Schul."

This was a reference to the listed mark of 8:26.4 set by Bob Schul of West Milton, Ohio, in 1964.

Fabick Rap First National Police Cut Canvas Products

At Farris Field in the American League last night, Fabick blasted First National, 12 to 1.

The game started with neither team scoring until the third when First National scored the first and only run scored by their team, to take the lead--at least until Fabick came to bat in the fourth. When that happened, Fabick powered out four hits to smash in their four runs. In the fifth, Fabick did the same, but instead, scored five runs on two singles and a double. First National remained with only one run; however, they did grab their two hits in that frame. In the sixth, Fabick scored three runs to total their runs to 12.

Bye pitched Fabick's win and gave the loss to First National's pitcher, Brase. Neither boy had relief. Bye held Brase's team with only one run and only two hits. Brase gave up 12 runs and eight hits.

Crain and Deane collected the only two hits for First National and Forrest had two for four for the winners.

Police rolled to a victory over Canvas Products in the second game.

Moore went all the way in taking the win for Police as he gave McDowell the loss. Moore held his opposing team to only four hits and only two runs. McDowell, with relief from Sipult in the fifth, also held Police to only four runs; however, to eight hits. Police started the game off with only one run in the first. Canvas came back to score one in the second to tie the game. Police did not score again until they erupted in the fourth to send seven men around the bases to score. That brought the score to 8 to 1. In the fifth Canvas managed their last run on two hits. Neither team scored in the sixth.

The big men in hitting for Canvas were Stewart, Sipult, Green, and McDowell. Davis, Moore, Terrell, and Mills had the four hits for Police.

Sports TALK

By DON SAVAGE

One of the most avid of all sportsman and by far the most colorful is the fisherman.

This season many men have ventured forth into the wilds of their favorite lake or stream, in an attempt to bring home a satisfactory catch. Fishing success at many of the lakes has been very good according to the latest records and surveys. For example, two fishermen at the Schell-Osage management area in Henry County, took 13 bass from Schell lake, that totaled 53 pounds an average of more than 4 pounds each. Carp fishing has contributed greatly to the reduction of fishing fever for both pole and line anglers and bow and arrow fishermen throughout the state. Carp have been suckers for cottonseed cake and limbliness. Sixteen such lines produced 73 pound of carp for two fishermen over two nights of fishing, during May.

Other lakes under the Missouri State Conservation Commission management are also producing abundantly, but are not attracting enough anglers for an adequate harvest. Lake Paho in Mercer county, which could serve as a yard stick for the other lakes, was recently surveyed by fisheries personnel. The results showed that over 42 per cent of the bass netted and tagged were over 10 inches long with several weighing over 6 pounds. One third of the bluegill sampled were over 7 inches long or an average of 1/2 pound each. These fish are simply waiting for a tempting morsel from some anglers line, as fishing pressure has been extremely light this year.

Lake Hunnewell in Shelby county and Sever Lake in Knox county have yielded good catches of bass, bluegill and channel cat thus far this spring. But, fishing pressure has been moderate to light on both of these lakes. So, fishermen who are looking for some uncrowded waters, and a place to fill their creels, should try one of the Conservation Commission managed lakes.

Jack Dempsey Has 70th Birthday Today

NEW YORK AP -- "Congratulations, Champ."

Jack Dempsey turned 70 today, but the calls and greetings have been coming his way for more than a week.

Mrs. Dempsey was to make it official today with a birthday party for the old Manassa Mauler at the Broadway restaurant bearing his name.

Although he lost the heavyweight crown to Gene Tunney nearly 39 years ago, Dempsey still is hailed as "Champ," wherever he goes.

He looks fit enough to get into the ring. He stands ramrod straight, and there's only a little gray in his black hair. Dempsey carries his 215 pounds like an active athlete, and he still moves as softly as a tiger.

The Champ bubbles with energy. Daily, from a table at the window of his restaurant, he jumps up to sign autographs and pose for pictures with old-timers, who remember him from a way back, and youngsters who have heard about him from grandpa.

He was a lean tiger of 24 when he chopped down Jess Willard, a giant of 245 pounds in three rounds and won the heavyweight crown at Toledo, Ohio, July 14, 1919. It was announced that Dempsey weighed 187 pounds, but he said he scaled only 180.

"Beating Willard was my greatest thrill," said Dempsey.

"It opened the doors of the world to me. It helped me to meet presidents and kings and people from all over. It made me what I am today."

He has no regrets over the "long count" Tunney got in their Chicago return fight when Dempsey floored the former Marine. Dempsey didn't go into a neutral corner, and the referee didn't count until he did.

It was estimated that Tunney was given a respite of 14 to 16 seconds in that fight at Chicago, Sept. 22, 1927. Tunney won a 10-round decision.

Clay Asks For Annulment From Non-Muslim Wife

MIAMI, Fla. AP -- Cassius Clay wants his 10-month marriage ended and his wife doesn't, so the heavyweight champion apparently has another fight on his hands, this one in court.

"I just love my husband and I want to be with him," said pretty, 25-year-old Sonji Clay when she was told that Clay had accused her of failing to be a good Muslim wife. "I will fight to keep my husband."

"It's just this religion. I have tried to accept it, and I have explained this to him, but I just don't understand it. It's very hard to change to the way they want me to be."

The 23-year-old champion, who has been a Muslim since he won the Olympic title in 1960, filed suit for an annulment in a Miami court Wednesday, complaining that Sonji had reneged on a promise to convert to Clay's Muslim faith.

He also said she did not follow Muslim dictates against the use of whisky, tobacco and facial makeup and Muslim requirements that "all female adherents cover their bodies with floor length dresses of plain and simple design."

"We've always had our little arguments about clothes," Sonji said in Chicago where she is staying at the home of her godmother. But she said she had done her best to respect the faith and its strictures.

According to the suit, the marriage began to break up the day after Clay defended his title against Sonny Liston, May 25 in Lewiston, Maine.

The next day Clay found Sonji in the lobby of the Schine Inn at Chicopee, Mass., "both attired and conducting herself in a manner contrary to tenets and beliefs of the Islamic faith," the suit said.

They had an argument and Sonji left for Chicago. They did not see each other again until June 11 when they went to a Chicago dressmaker to get some of those "plain and simple" floor-length dresses.

The suit asked for an annulment, but if an annulment is not granted, it asks a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty as an alternative.

An annulment would preclude Sonji from any alimony or property.

Sonji, a dark-haired beauty with a waspish waist, married Clay in a civil ceremony in Gary, Ind., Aug. 14. Clay's suit said they were married previously by common law in Miami on July 24. She denied that.

Clay few from Miami to Los Angeles for a television interview and refused to talk about the suit.

NEW MADRID'S main street is getting its face lifted this summer as youth corps workers repair broken sidewalks. This work is being done on South Main.

YOUTH WORKERS build a new sidewalk at the Portageville high school. Before they finish, they will have mixed, poured, and finished more than 1,700 sacks of cement.

A BREAK is taken after hours of scraping in laying out a baseball field at Howardville high school on Highway 61 in New Madrid County. This group is part of the National Youth Corps.

REMOVAL OF AN EYESORE is only part of the work that is being done at the Lilbourn High School by National Youth Corps workers. Here an old stump is being dug out.

Youth Corps Projects Underway in Six Towns

NEW MADRID — Neighborhood Youth Corps projects in six New Madrid County communities are into their second week and approximately 340 youngsters are now working, according to Robert Pulliam, county program supervisor.

Pulliam said that the exact number of boys and girls involved in the program varies from day to day as new applicants are approved by the state office in Jefferson City. Eventually, more than 400 young people are expected to be enrolled.

In order to qualify for NYC, a boy or girl must be between the ages of 16-21. Each applicant must prove a need for this work. Each youngster can work a maximum of 30 hours per week and is paid $1.25 per hour. Each will receive five hours counseling each week.

A wide variety of chores are being performed by this work force. Some youngsters have been placed in secretarial positions. Others are working with the county's conservation agency, and still others are cutting weeds, repairing sidewalks, cleaning ditches, laying out athletic fields, repairing books, and a host of other tasks. Essentially, they are doing work that wouldn't ordinarily be done by regular municipal and school maintenance personnel.

Pulliam emphasized that counseling, though limited to five hours each week, is the most important phase of the program. Counseling is done by supervisors in each community and covers such areas as job placement and opportunities, personal and home cleanliness, effects of alcohol, manners and morals. Pulliam said that the program will be worth while if just a small percentage of the youngsters can be "lifted up" through these counseling sessions.

Benefits from the Neighborhood Youth Corps program in the county are many fold. First, the boys and girls benefit directly because the money they earn will enable them to meet some of the expense of another year of school and they have the personal satisfaction of doing a job and being paid for their labor.

Communities and school districts are receiving present and long range benefits from various work projects now underway. For example, in New Madrid ditches are being cleaned, city sidewalks are being repaired, books are being mended, school buildings are undergoing extensive cleaning, and youngsters with the help of the city engineer are laying out and constructing athletic fields. Work of this nature is being done in six communities.

Approximately $200,000 will be distributed in the county through worker's wages, supervisors' salaries, and materials purchased. This is money that would not otherwise have been available.

Twelve supervisors are now at work in the county. At Lilbourn they are Bob Frazier and Virginia Hurt; New Madrid, Blanchard Boone and Mrs. Sarah Dyke; Morehouse, Fred Glover, John Bohanan, Mrs. Willa Alsop, and Mrs. Lorita Jeanne McIntyre; Howardville, William Jackson; and Portageville, James Englehart, Donald Pickens, and Edsell Allen. The program at Risco is being supervised by the job security division of the Missouri Employment Service.

This program is being administered by the Missouri Office of Urban Affairs and is a result of the Department of 1964 labor economic opportunity act.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., -- The American Red Cross recently gave public recognition to organizations and individuals of Blytheville AFB whose cooperation during the last bloodmobile drive helped to make the fiscal year 1965 blood drive an overall success.

For reaching or exceeding 100 per cent of their assigned goals, the 97th Combat Defense Squadron, Detachment 14-26th Weather Squadron, 97th Transportation Squadron, 65th Munitions Maintenance Squadron and the 97th Food Service Squadron were given the American Red Cross certificate of appreciation.

Weather received the award as the outstanding contributing organization. This award is presented to the most outstanding unit, based on percentage of their goal, at the close of each bloodmobile visit.

A new, permanent award was presented to the Combat Defense Squadron for their outstanding cooperation in all of the past blood drives. The squadron has won the rotating award three times during the past year.

Technical Sergeant Herbert Totty, 97th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, was awarded the ARC gold lapel pin and achievement card in recognition of completion of his fifth donated gallon of blood. Five gallons of blood is an accumulation of 40 trips to the bloodmobile.

Presenting the award was Colonel John W. Livingston, 97th Bomb Wing commander.

Modern Wars Hard On Generals

SEOUL, South Korea AP -- "If we ever get this blankety-blank war over, the United States will never get involved in another blankety-blank war like it again."

Those words were spoken off the record by Gen. Mark W. Clark as the fighting in Korea drew to an end. Inasmuch as Clark is retired from public life and there is no security involved, his remark is worth repeating now because of its irony.

Twelve years after the end of the Korean War, the United States is involved in a war in Viet Nam and there is every indication the fighting will be just as blankety-blank frustrating as it was in Korea.

Fifteen years ago, on the morning of June 25, 1950, North Korea Communist infantry, supported by Russian tanks and artillery, cracked a hole in the weak defenses along the 38th Parallel. It was the beginning of a war that lasted three years, claimed 60,000 American lives and 103,000 wounded.

But that wasn't the end. In the decade since, the American taxpayers have poured $4.5 billion dollars in various forms of aid and assistance to the citizenry of the Republic of Korea.

Mark Clark was driven to profanity over the situation in Korea for the same reason Gen. Douglas MacArthur was fired and Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway was happy to get a transfer to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Clark succeeded Ridgway as supreme commander of United Nations forces in Korea.

The maddening thing about commanding troops in Korea was the limitation on maneuverability. By the time Gen. Clark finally affixed his signature to an armistice, it took approval from the Pentagon to move a unit as large as a batallion along the purposely stalemated front. And everyone said the Pentagon couldn't give approval for ordering that battalion to attack without an okay from the State Department.

"If we ever get in a war here again we'll use all the weapons we've got," Clark also said off the record a decade ago.

Should the North Koreans strike again, they would get a hot reception, whether nuclear weapons were on the program or not. There are 650,000 Republic of Korea and U.S. forces along the front today.

Fifteen years ago, the Communists hit without warning and the lightly defended lines along the 38th parallel caved in immediately.

The United Nations Security Council convened, branded the attack "aggression," and 16 nations sent combat troops and seven others contributed complements, such as hospitals.

American troops from Japan reached Korea five days after the fighting started, but couldn't stem the tide. By midsummer, Gen. MacArthur's U. N. Command was squeezed into a narrow area far to the south which became known as the Pusan perimeter.

Gen. MacArthur broke out of the Pusan perimeter on Sept. 15, 1950 in one of the boldest maneuvers of his career. The 1st Marine and 7th Infantry divisions were landed at Inchon, far up the neck of the Korean peninsula, while the 1st Cavalry came banging out across the plains for Taegu, Taejon and on up through the mountain passes to slam the back door on Seoul.

The whole North Korean army was finished, leaving the 38th Parallel undefended for a mad dash to Pyongyang and the Yalu. The threat to Manchuria, in November 1951, brought the Chinese into the fighting and the United States and the Republic of Korea had a new war on their hands.

The demilitarized zone, which divides North and South Korea, starts along the Han River estuary, on the western coast, then turns north to a spot 15 miles south of Kaesong, then east, then north again to about 15 miles north of Chorwon, once the site of bloody fighting, east again to a spot north of the Hwachon Reservoir, then northeast to a point on the Japan Sea slightly south of Kosong.

The Kaesong area, north of Seoul, is guarded by 50,000 Americans. The rest of the zone is manned by 600,000 South Korean infantry.

The strength of the Communists in Korea is open to conjecture.

According to the official report submitted to the Armistice Commission June 14, 1965, 205,620 Communist troops have arrived and 817,239 departed since July 27, 1953.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I was married last December and have just learned that we will be having a child in several months.

This evening my husband said in a matter-of-fact tone, "Of course we will save money on doctor bills because my father will see you through the pregnancy and deliver the baby." I became thoroughly unhinged by this suggestion. I told my husband I am very fond of his father and that I respect his competence as a physician but because of the intimacy of this type of relationship I could not bring myself to go to him as a patient.

My husband says I am immature and that his father will be hurt if we engage another physician. Who is right and who is wrong? You are going to decide for us. --WISCONSIN READER

Dear Reader: The relationship between a woman and her obstetrician is a very special one. The choice should be yours, and yours alone.

If your husband is a "leaner" (and I suspect he is) it would be unwise to get his father into the act for still another reason. A young man should not be haunted by the fear that he couldn't even bring a child into the world without his father's help.

Dear Ann Landers: My oldest daughter who is 12 has developed a terrible habit of lying. She makes up tall tales about herself, her friends and her family. As a rule they are not stories that would hurt anyone, but they are lies nonetheless.

I've tried reasoning with her, taking away privileges and spanking her. It's like talking to a rock. I'm afraid my three younger daughters will pick up her habit of lying if something isn't done soon.

Why should a 12-year-old be the center of attraction wherever she goes? This girl believes she must be first in all things. Please don't tell me she has had too much attention and is spoiled. My children came very close together and no child received more attention or love than another. I treat them all the same.

I am at my wits end trying to deal with this lying girl. Can you help me?--PUZZLED MOTHER

Dear Mother: Chronic lying is a symptom of insecurity. Your daughter lies because she feels unloved and unimportant. She is trying to build herself by telling startling stories.

Your hostility toward the girl and your defensiveness about your feelings is apparent in your letter.

I suggest that you get professional help. Perhaps when you learn why you feel as you do, your attitude toward her will improve and she will stop lying.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother and his wife and my sister and her husband have had a falling out.

The six of us used to have a lot of fun together. We never had a party without them.

Now my sister refuses to come to our home if our brother and his wife have been invited. My brother's wife feels the same way about them.

My husband and I have tried everything to persuade these four to be friends again but we can't get to first base. My husband says to invite them all and act as if nothing happened. Waht do you say?--ASUNDERSVILLE

Dear Asundersville: Since you are aware that these people don't want to be together, why try to force a situation which will make four people uncomfortable? Invite them separately.

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Storing Winter Woolens

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

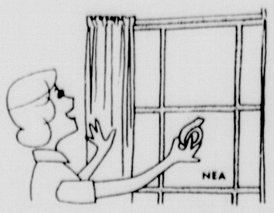
Polly

DEAR POLLY—When storing winter woolens do try this trick that was on my grandmother's list of home remedies. Instead of pungent moth balls and moth flakes, use odorless epsom salts wrapped in gauze or thin cloth. Also sprinkle epsom salts under the edges of wool rugs. I have done this for years and never had a moth problem.—JUDY

DEAR POLLY—When using ribbon to make a bow for a girl's dress, make a small buttonhole in the center of its length. Sew a small button on the dress where the bow is to be placed, button the ribbon on the dress and then tie in a bow. This is much better than pinning the ribbon on. Taking the bow off also makes for easier ironing.

When putting needles in a pin cushion, leave some thread on each needle and they won't easily disappear down into the pin cushion. If they do, it is easy to pull them out with the thread.—ELSIE

DEAR POLLY—I took down my heavy draperies and padded valances to replace them with lighter ones and no valances. The white enamel traverse rods did not look well against the walnut woodwork in the room. I bought dark brown gummed tape, cut it in pieces the lengths of the rods, flattened it on the front part of each rod and then carefully folded the edges over the tops and bottoms of the rods. The cords still pull the hook holders and the rods blend with the paneled walls and dark woodwork. In case I want to I can have white rods again by simply pulling off the plastic tape.—SARAH



DEAR POLLY—My grade school daughter needed a shoe tote bag. I cut a pair of my husband's old light blue corduroy pants off just below the worn knees, sewed a seam across and let the cuff down and used the hem to pull a drawstring through and made a loop at the end of the cord for her wrist.

I also use snug cuffs from worn socks to make clothes for her doll. I cut off the foot and the cuff can be used for a sheath dress or strapless sun dress. The girls have fun using their own ideas, too.—MRS. L. Z.

DEAR POLLY—My hint is for those who use powdered milk. Put the required amount of powder milk into a quart bottle and mark that level with red nail polish on the outside of the bottle. No more measuring will be needed as the bottle is just filled to that line and then water added.—M. L.

Many Have Stake In Industry

NEW YORK -- What are American stockholders like? Rich widows and corporation executives? City slickers and smalltown bankers?

We are told today that 20 million of the nation's 197.5 million people own one or more stocks. A profile can be drawn from the 1965 census of shareownership by the New York Stock Exchange. From it emerges answers to such questions as:

Who owns stocks? What is his occupation? His education? His income? His age? How did he get his first shares? What percentage of the nation's women, of men, of minor own stocks? In what size city do shareholders live?

At 20 million, the stockholder population has gained 18 per cent over a like census in 1962 showing 17 million, and more than three times the 6.5 million tallied in 1952.

The census is based on a poll of a sampling of shareowners of 6,724 publicly owned corporations with 18 billion shares outstanding. At the market value early this year the total holdings of individuals would have brought $400 billion. The other $250 billion of these shares were held by financial institutions, trust funds, corporations and the like.

Cities in the 2,000 to 5,000 class have the largest percentage owning stocks. Of all those who live in these places 15.5 per cent own shares, up from 12.5 per cent in 1962. Second largest is the 13.9 per cent of those living in cities in the 100,000 to 500,000 class. They are closely followed by the 13.5 per cent of dwellers in 15,000 to 100,000 cities. Of all Americans living in cities larger than 500,000 some 12 per cent own stock. In rural areas and towns under 2,500 just 3.4 per cent are stockholders.

The occupation of shareowners also have some percentages that may surprise you. There are 3,136,000 in professional and technical work, or 37.4 per cent of all those in the country so employed. This tops the class usually thought of as stockholders - the managers and officials. There are 2,330,000 of them, or 31.1 per cent of all in this classification. Other owner types by percentage of the total in that occupation are: clerical and sales 21.8 per cent, craftsmen and foremen 10.4 per cent, service workers 5.3 per cent, operatives and laborers 4.3 per cent, and farmers and farm laborers 1.7 per cent.

Almost 60 per cent of Americans with four years or more of college education own shares -- 6,028,000. Of those with one to three years of college 35.4 per cent are stockholders. With four years of high school 15.2 per cent are shareowners; with three years of high school or less 5.6 per cent.

Income groups stack up this way: 60.2 per cent of those making $25,000 or more a year own stocks; 30.2 per cent of the $15,000-$25,000 group; and so on down the scale to 3 per cent with annual incomes under $3,000.

But the census stresses that 11 million shareowners, or 55 per cent of the total, have incomes under $10,000 a year, even if most peoples in this classification aren't stockholders.

The census also shows that one out of every five women shareowners got her first stock as a gift or inheritance, while one out of every 13 men did.

It also shows that 16 per cent of the adult female population of the nation owns one or more shares, and 17 per cent of the adult male population.

There are 705,000 males under 21 who own shares -- 1.8 per cent of the total -- and 575,000 young females -- 1.5 per cent. These youngsters make up 6.5 per cent of the 20 million shareowners. The 3,347,000 owners who are 65 or over make up 16.9 per cent of the total.

The number of minors nearly tripled since 1962; the increase among senior citizens was the second largest, 28 per cent.

The biggest group continues to be the 35 to 54 range with 8.9 million owners, or 45 per cent of the total.

Voting Rights And Legal Wrongs

A Commentary on S. 1564, the proposed "Voting Rights Act of 1965," prepared and distributed as a public service by the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government.

Q. Are you now referring to the Fifteenth Amendment?

A. Yes, for that Amendment — the Amendment relied upon to support the constitutionality of the proposed legislation — prohibits the denial or abridgement of the right to vote on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

That Amendment does not, however, abolish non-discriminatory literacy tests or other performance qualifications nor does it give to Congress any right to set the qualifications for voters, whether they vote in Federal, State or local elections.

A. But the Attorney General of the United States, Nicholas de B. Katzenbach, testified before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary on March 23, 1965, that:

"Far from impinging on constitutional rights — in purpose and effect, the bill implements the explicit command of the Fifteenth Amendment that 'the right . . . to vote shall not be denied or abridged . . . by any State on account of race (or) color.'"

A. We have already discussed how the bill would prohibit any test or qualifications once Section 3 became operative. How can the Attorney General make such a claim?

That the framers of the Fifteenth Amendment intended to give to the Federal Government power to set voting qualifications is absolutely rebutted by the legislative history of that Amendment.

Consider the following facts.

The House of Representatives of the 40th Congress was first to pass the 15th Amendment. When the House version was reported to the Senate, that body amended the original House version to ban discrimination based on nativity, property, and education. The House refused by a vote of 133 to 37 to accept this version. Congressional Globe, 40th Cong., third sess., February 15, 1869, p. 1226.

The Senate, at this point, rather than delay longer the passage of the resolution, receded from its amendment. Id., page 1329. The final conference report contained the present text of the 15th Amendment. Id., at page 1623. A constant criticism heard while the debate was going on in the Senate was to the effect that the Senate was giving way to the House. Id., at page 1639.

It would seem to war with reason to suggest that Congress, after having expressly deleted a provision banning educational qualifications from the amendment, should have intended that the watered-down version which finally became the Fifteenth Amendment should encompass a provision which had been expressly deleted.

It is clear that the deletion of the educational voting restriction ban forecloses any congressional action in this field. A State would be wholly within its constitutional prerogatives to provide that none but those who pass the eighth grade, or college, or law school, or who can read English, or Latin, or Greek, can vote at Federal or State elections.

Again, it must be said: In order to justify its attack on State literacy tests, which are not prohibited by the Fifteenth Amendment, the Federal Government is forced to rely upon a questionable presumption.

The State can be found guilty of denying the right to vote, not only in Federal elections, but in State elections also by an administrative official outside the judicial system. The only times that the Federal Government constitutionally can get involved in such an area is where there has been a judicial determination in the first instance that the Constitution of the United States has been violated. (To be continued.)

The height of human wisdom is to bring our tempers down to our circumstances, and to make a calm within, under the weight of the greatest storm without.

Wistfulness About Viet Nam Position

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been a kind of wistfulness about the Johnson administration's position on Viet Nam, a kind of repeated sigh for peace, but peace remains as elusive as a devil dancing on a rainbow.

Mixed in with the wistfulness, as American actions in Asia get tougher by the week, there is a rather gentlemanly restraint about all the administration says.

In fact, the administration has spoken of the U.S. actions, bombings and all, as restrained.

President Johnson almost never gets rough about the problem. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara uses an almost impersonal military jargon. And Secretary of State Dean Rusk, an apostle of understatement, sticks to a low key.

The Johnson administration's explanation for almost five months of bombing North Viet Nam, and building up U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, has been a sort of: "All we want to do is knock some sense into their heads."

The idea is that if the Communists get hit with enough bombs, or suffer enough losses in ground fighting, they'll finally catch on to the notion that peace is better.

But after all these months the Communists — North Vietnamese, Red Chinese, and Russians — must have hard heads because Wednesday Rusk complained: "The other side is obviously not ready for peace."

But then they never have been although the administration seems to keep thinking they might be. But if Rusk sounded melancholy, perhaps as much as at any time since the bombings began Feb. 7, it's no wonder.

The Russians Wednesday refused a visit by the British Commonwealth team created a few days ago to visit all the interested parties, the United States, Russia, Red China, North Viet Nam.

The mission's goal was to see if anyone wanted to talk peace. But what the Russians did Wednesday was more than matched two days ago by the Red Chinese who hooted at the peace team.

So that about finishes that. What next? More war is about all that's left, and harder.

Rusk acknowledged that air attacks alone cannot bring peace. By itself this would be a very mild statement, indeed.

But the restrained and gentlemanly Rusk added something which could be interpreted as meaning: If all the American military effort so far hasn't been able to persuade the Communists, then the United States will have to step up the war even more although he put it in his usual, understated way: "We must hope they know — as we do — that increased aggression would be costly far beyond the worth to the aggressor."

No mandarin could have been more courteous in telling an enemy to watch out. Some unidentified U.S. officials were a little more pointed, saying they expect a rough summer.

And yet, it's all like a needle stuck in a record, nothing really new after all the bombing and all the other American efforts.

Last February, about two weeks after Johnson had ordered the bombings to begin, The Associated Press reported he was not convinced the Communists were ready for serious negotiations.

On March 25 he was saying the United States "seeks no wider war" although by then the bombing had widened the war from South Viet Nam to North Viet Nam and this week U.S. bombers struck within 80 miles of China.

In April Johnson offered unconditional peace talks — although he did tag on a condition by insisting South Viet Nam must remain free and independent — but the North Vietnamese and the Red Chinese said nothing doing.

In May Johnson admitted the situation in Viet Nam was a "mess." His administration decided to push harder. He said "our only object is to prove that force will be met by force, but it will not work."

Patrolman Heads Missouri Squad

MARSHALL, Mo. AP -- The new moderator of the synod of Missouri of the United Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., is George Kahler, Missouri highway patrolman from Willow Springs.

Kahler, an elder in the Willow Springs church, was installed Wednesday as the synod ended a three-day session at Missouri Valley College.

The new vice moderator is the Rev. Isaac N. Scherpenisse, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of Farber. Paul N. Dell, Jefferson City, executive director of the Missouri Society of Professional Engineers, was reelected treasurer; and the Rev. Robert J. Rodisch of Jefferson City was reelected synod executive.

Mrs. V. M. Wilcox, Manchester, was elected president of the Women's Synodical Society of Missouri, which met in joint session with the synod.

Lutherans Agree To Join Others

DETROIT AP -- The Missouri Synod Lutheran Church, in convention here, voted Wednesday to join with other Lutherans in a common organization.

The resolution, which drew only scattered negative voice votes, endorsed a proposed constitution for the Lutheran Council in the USA and endorsed membership in it.

A spokesman said approval next June by the 3.25 million member Lutheran Church in America "appears certain." The American Lutheran church with 2.59 million members endorsed the LCUSA constitution last October.

Asks U. N. Intervention

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate hears appeals today for peace-seeking intervention by the United Nations in Viet Nam and for full-scale congressional debate on whether the United States should fight a Korea-type war there.

Legislature Clears Deck

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Both houses of the Missouri Legislature put in an active day Wednesday, passing several important measures and trimming calendars for the final week of the session.

Passed and sent to the Governor was a bill to increase from four to six the membership of the State Highway Commission. This will enable Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to make good his pledge to appoint members from St. Louis and Kansas City metropolitan areas.

Groceries Running Low

PHILADELPHIA AP -- The city's four largest grocery chains said today most of their stores will be without supplies by Friday night if the wildcat strike of some 12,000 members of Teamsters Local 107 isn't settled.

"Our stocks are going very fast," said Blayney J. Barton, an Acme Markets executive. "Some stores should start to run out of supplies tomorrow."

Supplies of gasoline and drugs in many retail outlets also were dwindling fast in this fourth day of a "holiday" taken by truck drivers of Local 107 in southeastern Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Spokesmen for Food Fair, Atlantic and Pacific, and Penn Fruit, the other giant chains in the area, reported their stores in the same boat.

PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

THURSDAY, JUNE 24, 1965

Keep in the love of God, and wait for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, to bring you to eternal life. Those whom you pity in their uncertainty, save, snatching them out of the fire. (Jude 21-22, Goodspeed)

PRAYER: Our Father, may we have divine compassion for others -- compassion which will draw them to Thee for new life, new decision, new service. May our hunger to serve Thee never diminish until Thy will rules in the hearts of all men and nations. Through Christ our Redeemer. Amen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Route 1
Sikeston, Mo.
June 15, 1965

Sikeston Standard Newspaper
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir,

Will you please tell me how a city with the population that Sikeston has cannot find jobs for disadvantaged youths for this neighborhood Youth Corps while a town a few miles to the west was able to employ 34 youths?

There are many advantages to this program as was printed out by your newspaper recently. When we have something that is worthwhile for our youth, why don't we take advantage of it. There are city parks, public library, city government, streets, etc. They can surely use a few of our boys and girls who need these jobs badly. The federal government pays their wages, so why are the employers worrying.

Respectfully,
Paul V. Jackson

P. S. Don't tell me that the City Government has co-operated. I've checked.

Girl, Eight, Killed in Gun Accident

R. D. CLAYTON, standing, hands City Manager Raymert Miller the deed to an acre of land adjoining Clayton park to the west. Looking on are Councilman Harry Dudley, City Clerk John Vaughn and City Collector Ronald Lee. The land was given as a memorial to George Rudy and Dora Rudy, father and mother of Mrs. Clayton.

Liquor Store At Kennett Robbed

KENNETT -- A lone gunman entered Sullivans Liquor and Grocery store on highway 25 last night at 8 p.m. and escaped with $85 from the cash register.

The store is owned by Mrs. Beulah Sullivan. A sister, Mrs. Gladys Freeman, was behind the liquor counter when the bandit entered. A second clerk, Mrs. Tillie Jones, in the grocery department was standing behind a counter at the opposite end of the store, but was not held up. The owner was not present.

As the man, described as being about 30 years old, six feet in height and weighing about 180 pounds, entered he approached the counter. With a hankerchief over a pistol, he told Mrs. Freeman:

"You know what this is, and be quick about it!" He ordered her to place all the money in a sack. He then turned and said to Mrs. Jones:

"This goes for you too!"

At this time two customers drove up and the man left by the back door not bothering to go to a second cash register near the grocery clerk.

The holdup man made his escape on foot. An investigation did not disclose any car near the building, and it is believed the man hid near the drainage ditch 30 or 40 feet away.

Police were notified immediately, but there was no trace of the gunman.

Visitor Dies Of Wound

An eight-year-old girl, a visitor in Sikeston, was shot and killed yesterday afternoon by an accidental shotgun blast fired by a seven-year-old boy playmate.

Shiela Diane Ergle of Rockford, Il, the victim, was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Sally Reese, 134 Sixth St.

She was shot by a seven-year-old cousin in the chest with a 12 gauge single-shot shotgun and was pronounced dead on arrival at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

The fatal shooting occurred in the living room of the Reese home. No other children were struck by the charge. The gun had been kept behind a bedroom door and police reported that the grandmother told them that she hadn't believed it to be loaded

Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick said the shooting occurred at 2 p.m.

According to him there had been no quarrel between the children before the shooting.

The mother and father of the victim were fishing at Whittens Lake near Canalou when the accident happened.

A coroner's inquest was held today at the police station to determine the cause of the death.

Sheila was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Ergle of Rockford. She was born Oct. 28, 1956 at Matthews. The family moved to Rockford five years ago. She had completed the third grade last month.

Other survivors are four brothers, James, Billy Wayne, Tommy and Mike Ergle; six sisters, Betty, Barbara, Carolyn, Linda, Nellie, Debbie Ergle; her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Reese, her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ergle of Matthews.

The body is at the Jackson Funeral Home. Services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Matthews Baptist Church with the Rev. William Tollison officiating. Burial will be in the Matthews cemetery.

Probation Revoked

NEW MADRID — A short, varied docket was experienced this week in circuit court with Judge William L. Ragland of Caruthesville presiding.

James Braxton's probation was revoked and he was transported to the state penitentiary in Jefferson City. Braxton had pleaded guilty Feb. 9, to a charge of tampering with a motor vehicle. At that time he was sentenced to the state department of corrections for two years.

Fulton Bibbs, Jr., entered a plea of guilty to a charge of careless and reckless driving. He was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to serve six months in jail. His sentence was suspended upon payment of costs and pending good behavior.

Four divorce actions were heard and were granted:

Lillie Mae Cauley versus Melvin Earl Cauley — decree to plaintiff with care and custody of one minor child and $6 per month child support.

Virgie Graham versus Orval E. Graham — decree to plaintiff.

Brenda Kennard Lancaster versus Harold Boyd Lancaster — decree to plaintiff with care and custody of one minor child and $30 per month child support.

Anna Mae Coffman versus John Brouse Coffman —decree to plaintiff and restoration of former name of Robertson.

Next law day in the court will be July 8, according to Clerk Van S. Sharp, Jr.

Presidential Disability Issues Settled

WASHINGTON AP -- House and Senate conferees finally have agreed on a constitutional amendment for the determination of presidential disability and succession.

A deadlock that persisted for two months and threatened to kill the proposal finally was resolved Wednesday night, and prompt approval of the final version by both House and Senate is expected.

The agreement reached by the conferees would give Congress 21 days to decide the issue when the vice president contests the right of a once disabled president to resume office. The House had fixed a 10-day limit; the Senate had set no limit.

The proposed amendment also provides for the succession to the presidency of the vice president -- now a matter of custom, but without constitutional sanction--and prescribes a method for insuring that the vice presidency always will be filled.

The drive for such an amendment began after President Dwight D. Eisenhower had been disabled by a heart attack in 1955 and picked up speed after the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

On the question of keeping the vice presidency filled, the amendment provides that the president would nominate a person to fill a vacancy, subject to approval by majority vote of both houses of Congress.

Motorist Fined $120

NEW MADRID —No felonies were on the docket of magistrate court this week when 30 persons faced Magistrate Erie Wright of Portageville on misdemeanor charges.

A charge of obstructing traffic and driving while intoxicated was filed against Mack Holliday. Holliday was fined $120, sentenced to serve six months in jail, and had his driver's license suspended for one year.

Robert Hendricks, charged with selling intoxicating liquor to minors, was fined $36.

A charge of disturbing the peace brought a fine of $22 to Junior Cantrell. He was also sentenced to serve 90 days in jail, then placed on probation.

Samuel C. Buchanan paid a total of $16 for driving as an unlicensed operator and for driving with defective brakes.

Four truckers of 13 fined for exceeding legal load limits paid as much as $100 this week. Willie Sipes paid $260 for an overage of 3,150 pounds; Carl E. Woodward, $215 for 2,700 pounds; Utley Lumber Company, $190 for 2,450 pounds; and Colson Corporation, $100 for an overage of 1,550 pounds.

Other charges were: improper registration of a motor vehicle — Marshall Johnson and Robinson Wholesale, $15 each; no PSC sticker — Utley Lumber Company and Jason S. Boykin, $110 each; unlicensed operator — Dorothy Jone Patterson, Fannie Mae Nance, Ruthie May Johnson, A. J. Wilkins, and Nebraska Bevely, $15 each; careless and reckless driving — Jessie Thomas Halford, $15, Donald Ditts, $22, and DeWitt Wooten, $45, six months in jail, then probation; excessive speed — James Earl Heath, $20.

Medicare Clears Group

WASHINGTON AP -- The Senate Finance Committee approved today the bill establishing a broad health care program for persons over 65 and raising Social Security payments for 20 million Americans.

The 12-5 vote sent the $6-billion bill to the Senate floor for expected passage in July.

It was the first time the committee had been willing to approve a health care for the aged program tied into the Social Security system. Last year it rejected such a move 11-6.

The committee made numerous changes in the bill passed April 8 by the House and strongly endorsed by President Johnson.

The Committee action came as the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association approached a showdown on whether to urge fellow physicians to boycott Medicare or to delay a decision.

Three Die In Tractor Mishaps

CAIRO, Ill.--Four accidents involving farm tractors have resulted in three fatalities and two injuries in two days.

A retired Wickliffe farmer was fatally injured in a tractor-auto accident near Wickliffe Tuesday.

Jim Curtis, 64, was pinned beneath the tractor following a collision that knocked it from the road into a ditch.

Driver of the car was Rufus Bacorn, 72, of Walnut, Ill.

The accident occurred as Curtis was driving the tractor on U. S. 51, about a mile-and-a-half south of Wickliffe.

Bacorn was charged by Kentucky State Police with involuntary manslaughter, and released on $2,500 bond. His case will be presented to the grand jury in August.

A Dongola youth, James Bracken, 14, was killed Tuesday about 5 p.m., when the front wheels of the tractor he was driving locked, throwing the vehicle into a ditch. Bracken was pinned beneath the tractor.

The accident occurred on the Dongola - Cypress blacktop about two miles east of Dongola.

A rural Dongola farmer was killed Monday when the tractor he was driving overturned on him while working on a farm near Wetaug.

No injuries were reported in an accident involving a tractor and car on the Dogtooth Bend Road Tuesday.

An auto, driven by Alfred Meyer, 52, of Jackson, collided with a disc being pulled by a tractor, dirven by Michael McCoy, 25, of Miller City.

Three Injured In Area Mishaps

Two persons were injured in a two-car collision yesterday at 6:40 a.m. on Route J, three miles west of Malden.

A 1965 Chevrolet, driven by James Gurlan, Poplar Bluff, was going west, when a 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Norma Sue Borders, 28, route one, Bernie, traveling east, went out of control on the slick roadway, going over the center line and striking the Gurlan car, the state highway patrol reported.

Injured was Mrs. James Gurlan, 21, Poplar Bluff, who received fractured facial bones, and the driver of the second car, who was bruised. Mrs. Gurlan was taken to the Baptist Hospital in Memphis.

Donna Simmons, 28, Portageville, received a neck injury in an accident at 11:15 a.m. yesterday at the junction of highways 61 and 162 at Portageville. She was traveling north in a 1965 Plymouth, and collided with a 1958 Chevrolet driven by Annie Lee Johnson, 34, Portageville, who made a left turn into a driveway. The Simmons woman was treated by a physician.

Careers Force Folklores To Quit

By RICHARD SMITH, JR.

All good things must come to an end.

After this summer, the Folklores whose appearances on the Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour was a highlight, are forced to disband.

The Folklores were among 18 finalists in the Mid-South Fair Talent Show held in Memphis, Oct. 1.

Although they were not one of the top three winners, they were asked to appear on the Ted Mack show, taped in Miami Beach Dec. 15. In order to qualify for the finals, the Folklores had to win the preliminaries and semi-finals in their division. More than 1,000 participated from seven states in the preliminaries and 48 in the semi-finals.

The Folklores appeared on television Jan. 17.

The singing group is made up of four boys and one girl.

The boys have graduated from high school and will go along different paths. George Gilmore plans to attend the University of Missouri at Columbia as a law major. Mike Jensen will major in television and radio journalism at Memphis State. Jim Caskey will join the Navy for aviation and electronics training. Larry Bond will attend Ole Miss, at Oxford, where he has a music scholarship.

This leaves Jennie Winters, the vocalist and feminine attraction of the quintet, in Sikeston High School, to be graduated in 1966.

This talented group first started with only three boys, Joe Childress, Gilmore, and Caskey, and their ukes at a Boy Scout camp in July of 1962. They played together and decided to organize a folk singing group. They called their group the "Gleesome Threesome." George had a small uke and the others baritone ukes.

They practiced until they thought they were good enough for the Kiwanis Talent Show in Charleston in August of that year. The group became more proficient; George began playing a banjo, Jim, a tenor guitar, and Joe, a six-string guitar.

After they had been playing together for a year, Skip Crumpecker joined with his guitar, however, for only about two months -- until graduation. When Joe and Skip graduated in 1963, Bond replaced Joe, and Rick Groves took Skip's position; however, Rick did not play a guitar but the bass fiddle.

After Larry and Rick took over, things really got started, and the Folklores began to move. Rick played throughout his last year in high school. Mike Jensen took the bass spotlight when Rick graduated in 1964.

About that same time the vocalist, Miss Winters, was introduced into the group.

The Folklores have made many appearances before audiences of Jaycees, Kiwanians, Lions, Legionnaires, Odd Fellows, Scouts, and church organizations.

Some of the most outstanding performances have been on the KFVS-TV Breakfast Show, three years at the cotton carnival, two years in the Charleston Lions' Minstrel Show, two years at the Jackson Talent Show, where on occasions they received first place; two years at the Mid-South Fair in Memphis, dance party in Paducah, Ky., on WPSD-TV; at a banquet held in Cairo for the Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois; and the Chamber of Commerce annual banquet. They were invited to play as Missouri's representative in the state pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

The Folklore's are sad about the dissolution of their close-knit quintet.

When asked about how they felt, each had a quick comment to make.

Junta Urges Many Changes

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic AP -- The Dominican junta proposed major changes Wednesday night in the peace plan put forward by the Organization of American States, while the rebels asked only minor modifications.

The replies of both sides seemed to put them in virtual agreement on only one major part of the OAS plan proposed Friday -- the holding of elections in six to nine months. The junta said, however, that the elections should be subject to postponement if the OAS found this necessary.

The lack of agreement seemed to leave the next move up to the OAS, which has a three-man peace committee negotiating with both sides.

U.S. Asks Nuclear Talks

WASHINGTON AP -- The United States has asked the Soviet Union to agree to a date at the earliest possible time for reopening 17-nation disarmament talks at Geneva aimed at negotiating an expanded nuclear test-ban treaty and an agreement to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Administration officials, awaiting a Soviet reply, said they see little prospect of any real progress in either of these fields in the near future.

Fresh attention was focused on the nuclear proliferation problem Wednesday in a Senate speech by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N. Y., who called on President Johnson to make non-proliferation "a central priority of American policy."

The White House, commenting on the Kennedy speech Wednesday in response to an inquiry, said it was "glad that Sen. Kennedy is also interested in this field."

Biggest Balloon Passes Trials

BEDFORD, England AP -- What is billed as the world's biggest balloon has passed its first trials.

The balloon is 137 feet long, 52 feet in diameter, and has a capacity of 156,000 cubic feet. Costing $42,000, it was made and had its first test at the Royal Air Force Station at Cardington, near here.

Leslie Speed, 59, designed it with the idea of carrying timber out of otherwise inaccessible forests in Canada's British Columbia. It is designed to lift three-ton logs clear of forests and load them on trucks. It also can drag a log weighing six tons.

Speed said to build roads in the logging area would cost $140,000 a mile

Check Writer Held

Police arrested William Pugh, formerly of Kennett, on a charge of passing fradulent checks to at least 12 merchants in the city.

Yesterday afternoon Gilbert Clinton, owner of Midtowner Motel, reported to police that he had received one bad check of the man, who was staying at his motel, and that Pugh had written two more checks which made Clinton suspicious.

Police made the arrest at 12:45 p.m. yesterday and police said that Pugh gave them a statement that he had cashed fraudulent checks in town while using the aliases of John Brown and John B. Brown. Police said that they did not know the amounts for which the checks were written.

Pugh is absent without leave from the army according to the police.

Bobby Davis of 222 Davis was arrested on a peace disturbance charge.

Salute 39 Years Service Of Charleston Superintendent

CHARLESTON -- J. H. Marshall, retiring superintendent of the Charleston schools, was given a dinner at the Charlestonian, Saturday at 7:30 p.m. by the board of education in acknowledgement of 39 years faculty service.

Marshall was elected a teacher in 1926, principal in 1927 and superintendent in 1946. Those attending the dinner included members of the board of education when he first was elected a teacher.

The roll was called and minutes read when he was elected teacher, principal and superintendent.

Mrs. Clifton Banta presented Mr. Marshall a book containing letters of appreciation for his service.

The tables were decorated in blue and white. After the dinner was over "Oh Charleston High" was sung.

Among the 56 present were Marshall's wife and their two sons and wives, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Marshall, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Marshall.

Marshall will retire July 1 and W. R. Pierce, Jr., the assistant superintendent will become superintendent.

Death Held Accidental

CHAFFEE — A coroner's inquest yesterday returned a verdict that Clarence Abernathy, 83, former Scott County road supervisor, died of an accidental gunshot wound.

He was found dead Tuesday night in his former home in Oran, according to Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick. Abernathy had made daily visits to his old home since his wife's death in 1963. He lived with a daughter, Mrs. McGoy Smith, in Oran.

Abernathy was supervisor until 1957.

C. of C. Call For Housing

Any person having housing that can be used by enrollees in the multi-occupation program is urged to contact the Chamber of Commerce office at GR 1-2498.

The program is scheduled to begin Monday in the number five building at the airport.

Injured In Bailing Out

Lt. Clyde LaPlant, Jr., nephew of Clifford LaPlant, suffered cuts, bruises, and black eye last week when he bailed out of a jet fighter plane near Ogden, Utah.

The 1,200-mile-per hour jet caught fire as Lieutenant LaPlant was returning from a flight to Burley, Idaho, and crashed 100 miles northwest of Burley. Lieutenant LaPlant lives in West Memphis, and is a former Sikeston resident.

Rain Big Crop Aid

BENTON: -- Yesterday's rain had a tremendous impact on area crops, according to farm management agent Richard McIntosh of the Missouri University extension center.

Corn has reached the critical silking stage, he said, and the near-inch rainfall will boost the per-acre yield an estimated 10 to 20 bushels. The corn is drawing one-fourth inch of moisture a day from the soil now, McIntosh said.

"So we needed about twice as much rain as we got," he said.

The weather forecast for today predicts partly cloudy skies with chances of rain this afternoon and tonight.

Rainfall in Sikeston yesterday measured .8 inch. Vanduser received about .9 inch.

Moisture needs for cotton were not critical, McIntosh said, but the rain brought up soybeans planted after the wheat crop.

U.S. Softens Pay Demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appears to be softening its insistence that the Soviet Union and other members of the United Nations refusing to pay peacekeeping assessments must pay their dues or lose their General Assembly vote.

President Johnson's aides indicate the President still is weighing what to say about — as he put it—"the future of the United Nations" in his speech to the U.N.'s 20th anniversary session in San Francisco Friday.

The U.N. Charter's Article 19 provides that members falling two years in arrears "shall have no vote" in the General Assembly. The Soviet Union, France, and Communist bloc countries face the potential penalty because of their refusal to pay for United Nations peacekeeping operations in the Congo and Middle East. U.N. finances are more than $100 million in the hole.

Humphrey Visit Hailed

PARIS (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's 80-minute visit with President Charles de Gaulle Sunday may prove to be a turning point for the better in the strained relations between France and the United States.

The two allies will continue to be at odds over such vital issues at Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But highly informed French sources feel Humphrey's call on the French president punctured a ballooning discord which had reached serious proportions.

The visit was considered a success on both sides.

Just how far they ranged in their talk is not publicly known.

Pope Returned To Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. AP -- Duane Earl Pope, 22, has been returned to the Nebraska Penitentiary for safe keeping before his trial in connection with the June 4 robbery of the Farmers State Bank in Big Springs, Neb., and the killing of three persons.

Pope surrendered to authorities in Kansas City after a nationwide search had been conducted for him.

Helen Keller, Nearing 85, Enjoys Quiet, Gentle Life

EASTON, Conn. AP -- As Helen Keller approaches her 85th birthday, she's enjoying a quiet and gentle life.

She has her flowers, her garden, her dog Tinker, and the birds.

"All of the birds are her friends," says a close companion of the blind and deaf author.

"Miss Helen is living in retirement," a friend says. "That covers it."

The world still beats a path to her country home at Arcan Ridge, only to find the doors politely, but firmly, shut.

But close friends and neighbors stop in occasionally for tea, and there will be cake and champagne when she observes her birthday Sunday at home.

Miss Keller's traveling days are just about over. She still receives awards, but doesn't make the trips to pick them up.

A friend says Miss Keller is in the best of health for a woman of 85, although her vitality is waning. In the past two or three years she has given up most of her writing and all public speaking.

Sunday's celebration will be more or less a family affair.

An illness 19 months after Miss Keller's birth in Tuscumbia, Ala., left her blind and deaf. Through the efforts of her teacher, Anne Sullivan, Miss Keller was transported from a world of silence and dark rage to one of communication and faith.

Medicare Clears Group

WASHINGTON AP -- The Senate Finance Committee approved today the bill establishing a broad health care program for persons over 65 and raising Social Security payments for 20 million Americans.

The 12-5 vote sent the $6-billion bill to the Senate floor for expected passage in July.

It was the first time the committee had been willing to approve a health care for the aged program tied into the Social Security system. Last year it rejected such a move 11-6.

The committee made numerous changes in the bill passed April 8 by the House and strongly endorsed by President Johnson.

The Committee action came as the House of Delegates of the American Medical Association approached a showdown on whether to urge fellow physicians to boycott Medicare or to delay a decision.

Three Die In Tractor Mishaps

CAIRO, Ill.--Four accidents involving farm tractors have resulted in three fatalities and two injuries in two days.

A retired Wickliffe farmer was fatally injured in a tractor-auto accident near Wickliffe Tuesday.

Jim Curtis, 64, was pinned beneath the tractor following a collision that knocked it from the road into a ditch.

Driver of the car was Rufus Bacorn, 72, of Walnut, Ill.

The accident occurred as Curtis was driving the tractor on U. S. 51, about a mile-and-a-half south of Wickliffe.

Bacorn was charged by Kentudky State Police with involuntary manslaughter, and released on $2,500 bond. His case will be presented to the grand jury in August.

A Dongola youth, James Bracken, 14, was killed Tuesday about 5 p.m., when the front wheels of the tractor he was driving locked, throwing the vehicle into a ditch. Bracken was pinned beneath the tractor.

The accident occurred on the Dongola - Cypress blacktop about two miles east of Dongola.

A rural Dongola farmer was killed Monday when the tractor he was driving overturned on him while working on a farm near Wetaug.

No injuries were reported in an accident involving a tractor and car on the Dogtooth Bend Road Tuesday.

An auto, driven by Alfred Meyer, 52, of Jackson, collided with a disc being pulled by a tractor, dirven by Michael McCoy, 25, of Miller City.

Careers Force Folklores To Quit

By RICHARD SMITH, JR.

All good things must come to an end.

After this summer, the Folklores whose appearances on the Ted Mack Original Amateur Hour was a highlight, are forced to disband.

The Folklores were among 18 finalists in the Mid-South Fair Talent Show held in Memphis, Oct. 1.

Although they were not one of the top three winners, they were asked to appear on the Ted Mack show, taped in Miami Beach Dec. 15. In order to qualify for the finals, the Folklores had to win the preliminaries and semi-finals in their division. More than 1,000 participated from seven states in the preliminaries and 48 in the semi-finals.

The Folklores appeared on television Jan. 17.

The singing group is made up of four boys and one girl.

The boys have graduated from high school and will go along different paths. George Gilmore plans to attend the University of Missouri at Columbia as a law major. Mike Jensen will major in television and radio journalism at Memphis State. Jim Caskey will join the Navy for aviation and electronics training. Larry Bond will attend Ole Miss, at Oxford, where he has a music scholarship.

This leaves Jennie Winters, the vocalist and feminine attraction of the quintet, in Sikeston High School, to be graduated in 1966.

This talented group first started with only three boys, Joe Childress, Gilmore, and Caskey, and their ukes at a Boy Scout camp in July of 1962. They played together and decided to organize a folk singing group. They called their group the "Gleesome Threesome." George had a small uke and the others baritone ukes.

They practiced until they thought they were good enough for the Kiwanis Talent Show in Charleston in August of that year. The group became more proficient; George began playing a banjo, Jim, a tenor guitar, and Joe, a six-string guitar.

After they had been playing together for a year, Skip Crumpecker joined with his guitar, however, for only about two months -- until graduation. When Joe and Skip graduated in 1963, Bond replaced Joe, and Rick Groves took Skip's position; however, Rick did not play a guitar but the bass fiddle.

After Larry and Rick took over, things really got started, and the Folklores began to move. Rick played throughout his last year in high school. Mike Jensen took the bass spotlight when Rick graduated in 1964.

About that same time the vocalist, Miss Winters, was introduced into the group.

The Folklores have made many appearances before audiences of Jaycees, Kiwanians, Lions, Legionnaires, Odd Fellows, Scouts, and church organizations.

Some of the most outstanding performances have been on the KFVS-TV Breakfast Show, three years at the cotton carnival, two years in the Charleston Lions' Minstrel Show, two years at the Jackson Talent Show, where on occasions they received first place; two years at the Mid-South Fair in Memphis, dance party in Paducah, Ky., on WPSD-TV; at a banquet held in Cairo for the Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois; and the Chamber of Commerce annual banquet. They were invited to play as Missouri's representative in the state pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

The Folklore's are sad about the dissolution of their close-knit quintet.

When asked about how they felt, each had a quick comment to make.

Humphrey Visit Hailed

PARIS (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's 80-minute visit with President Charles de Gaulle Sunday may prove to be a turning point for the better in the strained relations between France and the United States.

The two allies will continue to be at odds over such vital issues at Viet Nam, the Dominican Republic and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. But highly informed French sources feel Humphrey's call on the French president punctured a ballooning discord which had reached serious proportions.

The visit was considered a success on both sides.

Just how far they ranged in their talk is not publicly known.

Junta Urges Many Changes

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic AP -- The Dominican junta proposed major changes Wednesday night in the peace plan put forward by the Organization of American States, while the rebels asked only minor modifications.

The replies of both sides seemed to put them in virtual agreement on only one major part of the OAS plan proposed Friday -- the holding of elections in six to nine months. The junta said, however, that the elections should be subject to postponement if the OAS found this necessary.

The lack of agreement seemed to leave the next move up to the OAS, which has a three-man peace committee negotiating with both sides.

U.S. Asks Nuclear Talks

WASHINGTON AP -- The United States has asked the Soviet Union to agree to a date at the earliest possible time for reopening 17-nation disarmament talks at Geneva aimed at negotiating an expanded nuclear test-ban treaty and an agreement to halt the spread of nuclear weapons.

Administration officials, awaiting a Soviet reply, said they see little prospect of any real progress in either of these fields in the near future.

Fresh attention was focused on the nuclear proliferation problem Wednesday in a Senate speech by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N. Y., who called on President Johnson to make non-proliferation "a central priority of American policy."

The White House, commenting on the Kennedy speech Wednesday in response to an inquiry, said it was "glad that Sen. Kennedy is also interested in this field."

Biggest Balloon Passes Trials

BEDFORD, England AP -- What is billed as the world's biggest balloon has passed its first trials.

The balloon is 137 feet long, 52 feet in diameter, and has a capacity of 156,000 cubic feet. Costing $42,000, it was made and had its first test at the Royal Air Force Station at Cardington, near here.

Leslie Speed, 59, designed it with the idea of carrying timber out of otherwise inaccessible forests in Canada's British Columbia. It is designed to lift three-ton logs clear of forests and load them on trucks. It also can drag a log weighing six tons.

Speed said to build roads in the logging area would cost $140,000 a mile

Check Writer Held

Police arrested William Pugh, formerly of Kennett, on a charge of passing fradulent checks to at least 12 merchants in the city.

Yesterday afternoon Gilbert Clinton, owner of Midtowner Motel, reported to police that he had received one bad check of the man, who was staying at his motel, and that Pugh had written two more checks which made Clinton suspicious.

Police made the arrest at 12:45 p.m. yesterday and police said that Pugh gave them a statement that he had cashed fraudulent checks in town while using the aliases of John Brown and John B. Brown. Police said that they did not know the amounts for which the checks were written.

Pugh is absent without leave from the army according to the police.

Bobby Davis of 222 Davis was arrested on a peace disturbance charge.

Three Injured In Area Mishaps

Two persons were injured in a two-car collision yesterday at 6:40 a.m. on Route J, three miles west of Malden.

A 1965 Chevrolet, driven by James Gurlan, Poplar Bluff, was going west, when a 1962 Chevrolet, driven by Norma Sue Borders, 28, route one, Bernie, traveling east, went out of control on the slick roadway, going over the center line and striking the Gurlan car, the state highway patrol reported.

Injured was Mrs. James Gurlan, 21, Poplar Bluff, who received fractured facial bones, and the driver of the second car, who was bruised. Mrs. Gurlan was taken to the Baptist Hospital in Memphis.

Donna Simmons, 28, Portageville, received a neck injury in an accident at 11:15 a.m. yesterday at the junction of highways 61 and 162 at Portageville. She was traveling north in a 1965 Plymouth, and collided with a 1958 Chevrolet driven by Annie Lee Johnson, 34, Portageville, who made a left turn into a driveway. The Simmons woman was treated by a physician.

Salute 39 Years Service Of Charleston Superintendent

CHARLESTON -- J. H. Marshall, retiring superintendent of the Charleston schools, was given a dinner at the Charlestonian, Saturday at 7:30 p.m. by the board of education in acknowledgement of 39 years faculty service.

Marshall was elected a teacher in 1926, principal in 1927 and superintendent in 1946. Those attending the dinner included members of the board of education when he first was elected a teacher.

The roll was called and minutes read when he was elected teacher, principal and superintendent.

Mrs. Clifton Banta presented Mr. Marshall a book containing letters of appreciation for his service.

The tables were decorated in blue and white. After the dinner was over "Oh Charleston High" was sung.

Among the 56 present were Marshall's wife and their two sons and wives, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Marshall, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Marshall.

Marshall will retire July 1 and W. R. Pierce, Jr., the assistant superintendent will become superintendent.

Death Held Accidental

CHAFFEE — A coroner's inquest yesterday returned a verdict that Clarence Abernathy, 83, former Scott County road supervisor, died of an accidental gunshot wound.

He was found dead Tuesday night in his former home in Oran, according to Scott County Prosecuting Attorney Fielding Potashnick. Abernathy had made daily visits to his old home since his wife's death in 1963. He lived with a daughter, Mrs. McGoy Smith, in Oran.

Abernathy was supervisor until 1957.

Injured In Bailing Out

Lt. Clyde LaPlant, Jr., nephew of Clifford LaPlant, suffered cuts, bruises, and black eye last week when he bailed out of a jet fighter plane near Ogden, Utah.

The 1,200-mile-per hour jet caught fire as Lieutenant LaPlant was returning from a flight to Burley, Idaho, and crashed 100 miles northwest of Burley. Lieutenant LaPlant lives in West Memphis, and is a former Sikeston resident.

Rain Big Crop Aid

BENTON: -- Yesterday's rain had a tremendous impact on area crops, according to farm management agent Richard McIntosh of the Missouri University extension center.

Corn has reached the critical silking stage, he said, and the near-inch rainfall will boost the per-acre yield an estimated 10 to 20 bushels. The corn is drawing one-fourth inch of moisture a day from the soil now, McIntosh said.

"So we needed about twice as much rain as we got," he said.

The weather forecast for today predicts partly cloudy skies with chances of rain this afternoon and tonight.

Rainfall in Sikeston yesterday measured .8 inch. Vanduser received about .9 inch.

Moisture needs for cotton were not critical, McIntosh said, but the rain brought up soybeans planted after the wheat crop.

U.S. Softens Pay Demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States appears to be softening its insistence that the Soviet Union and other members of the United Nations refusing to pay peacekeeping assessments must pay their dues or lose their General Assembly vote.

President Johnson's aides indicate the President still is weighing what to say about — as he put it—"the future of the United Nations" in his speech to the U.N.'s 20th anniversary session in San Francisco Friday.

The U.N. Charter's Article 19 provides that members falling two years in arrears "shall have no vote" in the General Assembly. The Soviet Union, France, and Communist bloc countries face the potential penalty because of their refusal to pay for United Nations peacekeeping operations in the Congo and Middle East. U.N. finances are more than $100 million in the hole.

Pope Returned To Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb. AP -- Duane Earl Pope, 22, has been returned to the Nebraska Penitentiary for safe keeping before his trial in connection with the June 4 robbery of the Farmers State Bank in Big Springs, Neb., and the killing of three persons.

Pope surrendered to authorities in Kansas City after a nationwide search had been conducted for him.

Helen Keller, Nearing 85, Enjoys Quiet, Gentle Life

EASTON, Conn. AP -- As Helen Keller approaches her 85th birthday, she's enjoying a quiet and gentle life.

She has her flowers, her garden, her dog Tinker, and the birds.

"All of the birds are her friends," says a close companion of the blind and deaf author.

"Miss Helen is living in retirement," a friend says. "That covers it."

The world still beats a path to her country home at Arcan Ridge, only to find the doors politely, but firmly, shut.

But close friends and neighbors stop in occasionally for tea, and there will be cake and champagne when she observes her birthday Sunday at home.

Miss Keller's traveling days are just about over. She still receives awards, but doesn't make the trips to pick them up.

A friend says Miss Keller is in the best of health for a woman of 85, although her vitality is waning. In the past two or three years she has given up most of her writing and all public speaking.

Sunday's celebration will be more or less a family affair.

An illness 19 months after Miss Keller's birth in Tuscumbia, Ala., left her blind and deaf. Through the efforts of her teacher, Anne Sullivan, Miss Keller was transported from a world of silence and dark rage to one of communication and faith.

CONFUSION IS JUST ONE OF THE PROBLEMS

The logic of bureaucrats is a wondrous thing. Its intricacy is a spellbinding challenge to understanding. In an attempt to promote public understanding about bureaucracy and the confusion it creates with the halls of Congress, a newspaper printed the following -- with apologies to Lewis Carroll, author of Alice in Wonderland:

"Why is that man waving his arms and shouting?" asked the Hatter.

"Can't you understand?" Alice replied. "He's trying to convince the other members of Congress that they must spend $110 million to buy land in Minnesota to provide a better life for wild ducks so that there will be more ducks for hunters to kill."

"But why is he so excited?"

"He is urging the committee members to hurry up and buy the land before another agency of the government drains all the water off of it."

"But," persisted the Hatter, "doesn't the other agency spend the government's money to drain the land?"

"Precisely," replied Alice.

"Then why would they want to give one agency money to buy land in order to keep some other agency from spending money to drain it? Why wouldn't it be simpler to. ..?"

"There you go, Hatter, being logical again. Why can't you just sit quietly and listen to the committee?"

If this were the only problem we had to cope with in dealing with bureaucracy, we could be more optimistic about the future of America. But as it is, the logic of the bureaucrats is only one of many problems we face.

The cost of bureaucracy is growing each year. In 1930, the civilian payroll of the federal government was almost $1.1 billion. In 1962, the cost of civilians on the federal payroll was $14.8 billion. In 1950, ten percent of the total working force was employed at all levels of government - federal, state, and local. By 1962, the figure had risen to 13 per cent. That means that approximately one out of every eight workers is employed at some level of government.

There were 32,000 employees in agricultural civil service in 1933. Since then, the number of farms has been diminished by almost one half, but federal employment in agriculture has more than tripled to 101,000. This trend could reach the ridiculous point where there would be more farm bureaucrats than farmers.

Bureaucracy in America is greatly removed from our constitutional principles. The federal controls and the regimentation that go along with it can be evidenced in every phase of our daily lines.

Government regulates railroads, electric power companies, pipelines, interstate truckers, barge lines, and broadcasters.

Agriculture operates under price supports and production controls, and in many areas can already be said to be socialized.

The banking business is supervised by government.

Federal power also enforces minimum wages; polices labor relations; grants and denies subsidies in a wide range of projects; policies provide business, and condemns private property in the interest of federal projects.

Big government continues to grow because no one seeks to stop it. When the vigilance of the people is replaced with apathy, the quest for power goes on unchecked. The mistaken idea "that government must grow as the population grows," has been widely proclaimed. But, efficient and more realistic operation in all other situations of increased growth and complexity usually takes power away from the central authority.

The federal government has moved into more and more projects that should be left to the states, local governments, and individuals. It is already too big to be operated efficiently or economically.

The size and power of the federal government are undermining the whole fibre of our republic through a disregard for the sovereignty of the states and by encroachment on the lives of the people.

The tendency to ask Washington to solve problems has been partly caused by two world wars in which the people unquestioningly accepted federal expansion and controls. Since then, the people have not looked back to their own states as they should.

We must also realize that the states themselves are partly responsible because they have delegated much of their responsibility. The full blame cannot be placed on the bureaucrats who are always making new plans for federal expansion. The people and the states must bear responsibility, because they did not take action themselves to solve problems or to resist federal encroachment.

They are also responsible because they accepted the mistaken idea that if the federal government does something for them it costs nothing.

The mistaken ideology of liberating the masses through more, rather than less control of the people is unfortunately being accepted by too many of our citizens today.

And only the citizens can reverse this trend. If they do not, they will have the kind of government they deserve.

WELCOME BROTHER INDIAN!

The Blackfeet Indian Tribe of Montana is waging a "War on Poverty" of its own -- using Right to Work as a non-poverty meal ticket. The determined action of the Blackfeet has had the Interior Department's Bureau of Indian Affairs, the AFL-CIO, and some assorted Congressmen in a tizzy! When contacted here in Washington the Bureau sought to laugh the whole thing off. The AFL-CIO in Montana tried to call the whole thing off -- with assists from Washington political sources. And Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall ducked out of the picture, with his press agent saying the project on which the Indians were demanding the Right to Work without having to join a union would be completed "before the lawyers finish pondering." The National Committee is seeking the identity of the Blackfeet tribal leaders -- for possible testimony at the 14(b) Congressional hearings which are expected.

Vigorous protests by many persons and organizations are now being made against purchases by our government of foreign drugs produced on the basis of formulae and methods stolen from ethical American manufacturers."

CHECK OLD REFRIGERATORS

Reports from every section of the country within the last few weeks have told of the deaths of children who shut themselves into unused refrigerators while playing. More than once, too, a youngster has been found and removed from a box only after lack of oxygen had resulted in irreparable damage to the brain. In any event, the tragic occurrences in question should warn every community in the nation to institute a careful check of any such perils. It is a simple matter to remove locks or doors and thus make the old boxes harmless.

In view of the likelihood that health warning labels will eventually be required on cigarette packages, it gives one pause to be told that scaring people is not necessarily the best way to get them to do, or not to do, something for their own good.

This conclusion about human behavior comes from a psychologist with the University of North Carolina School of Public Health and is based primarily on a study of an oral polio vaccination campaign in Florida.

There it was found, reports Dr. C. David Jenkins, that the fear of a disease or the risk of getting a disease doesn't seem to encourage people to seek a way of preventing it or reducing the risk.

"Just Figure How Much We Would Save If We Could Afford to Buy Those Things"

ED VALTMAN—THE HARTFORD TIMES

Excessive scare campaigns may, in fact, have just the opposite result. Fear of cancer, he says, has actually driven some women away from screening clinics.

Apparently the need is to create a moderate degree of concern in people--something more than apathy but less than fear.

Yet some of the people in Florida took the vaccine because "it was the thing to do. It was socially fashionable. It was a way to become a part of the community."

The psychologist credits newspapers with doing a better job of conveying health information to the public than any other communications medium.

Unfortunately: "Teaching facts doesn't always motivate people's behavior," he says. "There are more emotional factors involved in behavior than a string of facts."

MATTERS MADE WORSE

Mr. Brown had just returned to the city and was introduced to the new nurse, who was unusually pretty.

"She is sensible and scientific, too," said Mrs. Brown, "and she says she will allow no one to kiss the baby while she is near."

"No one would want to," replied Mr. Brown.

"Indeed!" snapped the fond mother.

"I mean not while she is near," faltered the father, endeavoring to make things better.

The nurse did not stay long.

Alchemists are pictured historically as naive medieval scientists bending over hot furnaces earnestly cooking up recipes for transmuting common metals into gold. The truth is that by the 16th century most alchemists were cheerful charlatans plying what was perhaps the world's first modern confidence game. Gold-makers with "secret formulas" operated all over Europe, despite a unique occupational hazard. A gold-maker could find himself in bad trouble if he didn't produce, and in worse trouble if he did. This odd dilemma arose from the greed and power of the rulers who were the gold-makers' chief patrons. Petty German tyrants had no qualms about kidnaping any well - reputed alchemist passing through their territory and jailing and torturing him to compel his services. One Scotus, the best known of his day, was permanently crippled in this way before he escaped from a Teuton princeling. If, on the other hand, the alchemist came selling his knowledge -- for a whopping fee and heavy expenses--he might "make" a little gold while deferring his getaway. Typical of this ploy was Georg Honauer's method. While he and the Duke of Wurtemburg waited outside his locked and empty laboratory for a mixture to cook, a small boy crept from a chest inside to salt the pot with gold dust. It was with no sense of humor, but as a warning to others, that the Duke in 1597 had Honauer tinsel - draped like a Christmas tree and hanged in Stuttgart from a 35-foot iron gallows which was gilt-painted for the occasion. The gold gallows soon became a symbol that ended alchemical fakery.

OUR PHYSICIAN POPULATION GROWS

It is periodically charged that the number of practicing physicians in this country is not large enough to meet the need and the demand for medical services.

If such a fear has any validity at all, it would seem that the lack is being rapidly made up. The American Medical Association recently reported that the ratio of doctors per 100,000 population has increased from 137.8 to 146.7 in only three years. There is every reason to believe that the trend will continue. More students are enrolled in our medical schools than ever before, and this year's graduating classes totaled the highest in history. The number of those schools has grown from 77 to 87 in 17 years, five more are to be built shortly, and another six are in the planning stage.

The AMA News urges that physicians contribute to the future of medicine by giving guidance and inspiration to secondary school students who may be considering medical careers and must soon make a positive or negative decision. In its words, "By assisting these schools in their search for dedicated and well qualified students, today's physicians can assure a strong profession and a healthy America for tomorrow." No one who knows the caliber of the medical profession will doubt that such a challenge will be met.

So, there seem to be no grounds for believing that the standards of medical care in this country, which certainly are not surpassed anywhere, will suffer. There is, on the other hand, every reason for believing that those standards, aided by new discoveries and techniques, some of the literally revolutionary character, will surely improve.

KING-SIZED ALL THE WAY

A short time ago the Association of American Railroads issued the 13th edition of a leaflet called "Quiz On Railroads and Railroading". It proposes and answers 200 questions concerning every facet of this great industry -- from the size of the "Railroad Navy" (1,304 waterborne vessels of various kinds which are owned and operated by railroads) to the history of the caboose, a term used as early as 1855.

Of more immediate importance, "Quiz' ' provides some king-sized facts concerning the railroads' contribution to this country, its economy, and its security. In 1962, to cite a few, railroads performed 107 passenger miles of service for every man, woman and child in the country, and also, transported a ton of freight 3,190 miles and carried 41 pounds of mail. In the same year they employed 700,126 people who received salaries and wages of a staggering $4,662,113,000. Their tax bill over the 1956-62 period averaged $1 billion 13 million a year. And they spend close to $1.4 billion annually for supplies and services of a thousand and one kinds -- plus over $800 million for improvement to plant and equipment.

Then, when it comes to the national defense, the figures are still king-sized. During World War II they operated 113,891 troop trains. They transported some 42,700,000 members of the armed forces in these, in hospital trains, and in special cars. This does not include the millions of service people traveling singly or in small groups.

Figures such as these almost literally make the mind reel. Only a trained mathematician can visualize them. But they do give, to all of us, a vivid picture of the enormous importance of the railroad industry and of the urgent need, so widely discussed and publicized in late years, for legislation which will free them of obsolete regulatory fetters and permit them to do a still more effective job for the nation they have served so well and so long.

CONTROVERSIAL PATRIOTISM

A few years ago patriotism could not possibly be labeled controversial. People of great prominence, lesser lights and anti-patriots have succeeded in making patriotic fervor a subject of wide discussion and even derision.

Patriotism is not so proudly displayed by many of our citizens as it once was by all. This change of attitude did not just happen overnight. It is the product of years of skillful propaganda aimed at weakening the resolve of the American people by causing them to forget the greatness of America.

If patriotism had been maintained as a profitable attitude its decline in popularity would not have happened. Patriotism lost popularity in connection with a crusade of sophistication.

Parents have gone to Court to get their children in school excused from reciting the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. Faculty members and students have refused to sing simple oaths of loyalty to the United States and were not kidded into acceptance of proper values.

Comedians specializing in "sick" jokes make distasteful jokes about patriotism, and slick magazines specialize in lambasting patriotic organizations. Public officials recently found pressures compelling them to denounce good citizens as super-patriots, extremists or members of the "lunatic fringe."

Games in sports once began only after the playing of the National Anthem. Now, in many places the National Anthem is no longer played before the starting of the game.

A correction in the right direction would be to again cause freedom to be fashionable and patriotism profitable by steadfastly and joyously commending these virtues.

Everyone affected would soon feel more certain freedom shall endure. HLH

KHE SANH, South Viet Nam AP -- Two girl missionaries--an American and an Australian --are housekeeping in the wilds here in a mountain area long dominated by guerrillas.

They are Miss Eugenia Johnston of Houghton, N. Y., and Miss Nancy Costello of Sydney, Australia.

"We work with primitive tribes who don't have a written language," said Miss Johnston, who is slender and dark and wears glasses. "We write an alphabet for them, make textbooks and teach them to read and write.

"Then we brign them the word of God." She and Miss Costello, who is blonde and fair-skinned, represent the Summer Institute of Linguistics at Los Angeles and the Wycliffe Bible Translators of Santa Ana, Calif.

Both girls raised funds from church groups to finance their missionary task and each took a three-month course in jungle survival before coming here.

"They gave us a machete, and we had to make our own house and furniture," said Miss Costello. "But they did let us have matches and a snakebite kit."

The girls live now in a two-room, thatch - roofed bamboo stilt house, shaded by coffee trees, at the edge of the village.

It is several miles from the military compound in which dwells a U. S. Army Special Forces team of 14 men and several hundred native troops. The compound is protected by sandbags, mines, outposts and barbed wire.

The bamboo paradise is guarded only by a pet monkey, "Scooter." As some of the villagers regard monkey as a delicacy, "Scooter" is kept firmly leased to bamboo stilt, where he does cartwheels all day long.

"We're not afraid," said Miss Johnston, who has spent nine months here and three years in Viet Nam. "Our only problem is the perpetual threat that the Viet Cong will push us out."

The American soldiers keep a watchful eye on the girls and periodically bring them gifts of food. The girls repaid them recently by cooking them a Sunday dessert of pies and cookies.

Just as Robinson Crusoe had a man servant on his island, the two girls have a butler, too. He is one of the Montagnards, or mountain tribes people whom the girls are teaching.

"His name isn't Friday but Ayooq," said Miss Johnson. "Ayooq helps us prepare vegetables and sweeps the mission school. He'll do anything to be helpful. He's very conscientious."

Teaching the poverty-striken mountain people to read and write isn't easy. Their language has 62 sounds, including 40 vowels, and has at least 30 different tribal dialects.

"We work with the Brow tribe," said Miss Johnston. "There are about 70,000 of them here and in Laos.

"We like our life. We feel this is the good country, and these are the good people up here.

"They're very open and honest and loyal people. And if they like you, they'll do anything for you--because they trust you."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON — When 50 Congressmen junketed to Europe last weekend to see the International Air Show in Paris, it made front-page headlines. But when a majority of the U.S. Senate voted to let a handful of big corporations keep any important patents derived from government-financed research, it missed the big headlines.

The junket to Europe cost the taxpayers less than $100,000. The government research voted for a few big companies cost $5 billion.

Actually the $5 billion is part of a $5 billion research appropriation which the federal government allocates each year to defense contractors, space companies, big drug companies, and a few universities for medical research. The vote on letting the drug companies keep U.S. - financed patents comes up before the Senate this week.

"There is no more outrageous thing that can be done to the public interest," entreated Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, the Democratic whip, just before the Senate voted. "The government is being importuned to give away private patent rights on everything that the government does in the field of research."

Previously Long had been successful in persuading the Senate to reserve for the public the patents derived from government-financed research on the desalinization of water, helium gas research, the mass transit bill, and in the coal research act.

But as the really profitable patents pertaining to space and national defense came up for a vote, the lobbyists began to converge on Washington. They included representatives of the American Patent Bar Association, the electronics industry, aircraft and space industries, the chemical industry, and the big drug companies.

—TOO MUCH PRESSURE—

"The pressure is too great," confided Sen. Walter Mondale, the new Democrat from Minnesota, supposed to be a Hubert Humphrey liberal.

Lobbyists for some of the big Detroit industries called on Sen. Phil Hart of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Antimonopoly Subcommittee, supposed to be a crusader against monopoly. He too chickened.

When the Long amendment came up for a vote, the man who led the adroit move to table it was Sen. "Three - Gun" Tom Dodd of Connecticut, a crusader against juvenile delinquency.

Dodd is a member of the Space Committee, but has attended not one meeting this year and only one last year. When he successfully moved to table the Long amendment, it cost the public enough money to have paid for several hundred Boy's Towns.

He got help from a so-called Republican liberal, Sen. Jack Javits of New York, who operates a law firm on the side and frequently talks out of both sides of his mouth where corporate interests are concerned.

The two Kennedy brothers also voted for the big $5 billion giveaway, as did two other ardent Kennedy backers, young Birch Bayh of Indiana and young Joe Tydings of Maryland.

Ed Long of Missouri, who filled the shoes of trust-busting Estes Kefauver on the Senate Judiciary Committee, voted for the big patent giveaway. So did Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, elected by charging Sen. Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma with speculating on the commodity market.

Sen. John Pastore of Rhode Island, who led the Senate battle to give space patents to American Tel & Tel and the Communications Satellite Corporation, voted for the big patent giveaway. This was not surprising. It WAS surprising that his young Rhode Island colleague Claiborne Pell joined him.

Stuart Symington of Missouri voted for the big patent giveaway. He usually votes with big business. So does Scoop Jackson of Washington state, home of the Boeing bomber.

Lister Hill of Alabama, crusader and author of federal financing for hospitals, in this case voted to finance the research of very healthy billion-dollar corporations. Bob Byrd of West Virginia, who quibbles over a few hundred thousand dollars going to unemployed unwed mothers in the District of Columbia, cast his vote for the billion-dollar giveaway.

Vance Hartke of Indiana, who almost succeeded in blocking a military man, Gen. William F. McKee, as head of the Federal Aviation Agency, in this case voted with the big space contractors who have been working with McKee through NASA.

All of the above except Javits are Democrats; most of them smart enough to know better.

—ONE LONE REPUBLICAN—

All of the Republicans except one voted for the patent giveaway — Hiram Fong, first Chinese-American to be elected to the Senate. He stood up against the space lobby.

It's sometimes said the Republicans aren't smart enough to know the public interest. But one Republican smart enough to know the score is George Aiken of Vermont, who had been razzing Johnson for delaying the reappointment of consumers' defender Charles Ross to the Federal Power Commission. Aiken voted for the giveaway.

Another significant Republican vote was that of John Williams of Delaware, who has been waging a year-long campaign against the few thousand dollars involved in Bobby Baker's influence peddling. He voted for the billion-dollar giveaway to the big space corporations. So did Thruston Morton of Kentucky, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, and another ex - national committeeman, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Democrats who voted against the giveaway, 26 in all, were led by Clint Anderson, N. M., and Mike Mansfield, Mont., the Majority Leader. They were joined by Bartlett, Alaska; Bass, Tenn.; Burdick, N. D.; Church, Idaho; Clark, Pa.; Douglas, Ill.; Ellender, La.; Fulbright, Ark.; Gurening, Alaska; McGovern, S. D.; McIntyre, N. H.; McNamara, Mich.; Metcalf, Mont.; Montoya, N. M.; Morse and Neuberger, Ore.; Moss, Utah; Nelson and Proxmire, Wis.; Talmadge, Ga.; Yarborough, Tex.; Young, Ohio; and, of course, Long, La.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Use of Out-Of-Date Data by Federal Agency Wastes Millions of Dollars Intended for Jobless.

Washington, D. C.: -- A ten-cent phone call could have prevented the misuse of many millions of government dollars. But the call was not made.

No money was stolen--just misused. Few outsiders know just how many millions of dollars were wasted by one agency, the Area Redevelopment Administration, in an effort to help the unemployed.

At a minimum, the ineptly used funds come to over $17 million. It could run ten times that. Only the comptroller general of the U. S., Joe Campbell, and his eagle - eyed General Accounting Office know.

They delved into appropriations totaling over $700 million. They came up with the charge that the ARA threw millions into areas where improved conditions did not warrant the expenditure of the relief funds.

And, says the Comptroller, the ARA on the other hand did not spend enough money in depressed regions where more funds should have been spent.

This misuse of federal millions resulted from the ARA's failure to check the latest unemployment figures in the districts to which they rushed money for public works.

The ARA says it did not have current figures available.

Yet such data was available just down the street from ARA headquarters. The up to date figures on joblessness were and have been in the Labor Dept. One phone call could have given the ARA all the statistics it needed.

Instead, the ARA last year and during the end of 1963 used 1961 statistics or the data taken from one early month in 1962.

As a result hundreds of millions of dollars were spent on the basis of figures anywhere from 5 to 16 months old.

Thus, the millions were allocated in areas despite the fact that there had been "significant" changes in those cities and regions. We have the word of Comptroller Campbell that the changes were significant.

Thus cities which did not need heavy assistance got it. And depressed areas grew more depressed when they did not receive the full amounts they needed to help their growing joblessness.

In all, the ARA got $400 million for accelerated public works with which to create jobs in needy areas in Oct. 1962. Then in May 1963 it got another $450 million.

ARA's task was to discover how many jobless there were in each needy district or city. Then to spend money in that region or community accordingly. There was a set formula depending on the number of unemployed.

Therefore, much depended on the currency of the data. If a city had an increase in joblessness, money for job-making public works was poured in.

But instead of using month-old figures available over in the Labor Dept.'s Bureau of Employment Security, the ARA used 1961 and early 1962 data.

Thus, one Midwest city was overpaid $17.3 million because the job situation had improved rapidly since 1961 and there were far fewer unemployed.

But a city such as Miami, Fla., which had an influx of jobless between 1961 and 1964 was underpaid -- or underaided -- by almost $4 million. By using the 1961 figure of Miami unemployed, the ARA in 1963 and 1964 overlooked the tens of thousands of needy Cuban refugees.

Mr. Campbell in a statement deplored the ARA's re-use of "the same non-current data it had used" in the past.

And recently, when the Labor Dept. attempted to secure funds for even more exact, up-to-the-minute studies of the jobless, Congress refused to give the department some $2.5 million.

So the study now won't be made. Seems penny-wise and millions foolish.

CONFUSION IS JUST ONE OF THE PROBLEMS

The logic of bureaucrats is a wondrous thing. Its intricacy is a spellbinding challenge to understanding. In an attempt to promote public understanding about bureaucracy and the confusion it creates with the halls of Congress, a newspaper printed the following -- with apologies to Lewis Carroll, author of Alice in Wonderland:

"Why is that man waving his arms and shouting?" asked the Hatter.

"Can't you understand?" Alice replied. "He's trying to convince the other members of Congress that they must spend $110 million to buy land in Minnesota to provide a better life for wild ducks so that there will be more ducks for hunters to kill."

"But why is he so excited?"

"He is urging the committee members to hurry up and buy the land before another agency of the government drains all the water off of it."

"But," persisted the Hatter, "doesn't the other agency spend the government's money to drain the land?"

"Precisely," replied Alice.

"Then why would they want to give one agency money to buy land in order to keep some other agency from spending money to drain it? Why wouldn't it be simpler to. . .?"

"There you go, Hatter, being logical again. Why can't you just sit quietly and listen to the committee?"

If this were the only problem we had to cope with in dealing with bureaucracy, we could be more optimistic about the future of America. But as it is, the logic of the bureaucrats is only one of many problems we face.

The cost of bureaucracy is growing each year. In 1930, the civilian payroll of the federal government was almost $1.1 billion. In 1962, the cost of civilians on the federal payroll was $14.8 billion. In 1950, ten percent of the total working force was employed at all levels of government - federal, state, and local. By 1962, the figure had risen to 13 per cent. That means that approximately one out of every eight workers is employed at some level of government.

There were 32,000 employees in agricultural civil service in 1933. Since then, the number of farms has been diminished by almost one half, but federal employment in agriculture has more than tripled to 101,000. This trend could reach the ridiculous point where there would be more farm bureaucrats than farmers.

Bureaucracy in America is greatly removed from our constitutional principles. The federal controls and the regimentation that go along with it can be evidenced in every phase of our daily lines.

Government regulates railroads, electric power companies, pipelines, interstate truckers, barge lines, and broadcasters.

Agriculture operates under price supports and production controls, and in many areas can already be said to be socialized.

The banking business is supervised by government.

Federal power also enforces minimum wages; polices labor relations; grants and denies subsidies in a wide range of projects; policies provide business, and condemns private property in the interest of federal projects.

Big government continues to grow because no one seeks to stop it. When the vigilance of the people is replaced with apathy, the quest for power goes on unchecked. The mistaken idea "that government must grow as the population grows," has been widely proclaimed. But, efficient and more realistic operation in all other situations of increased growth and complexity usually takes power away from the central authority.

The federal government has moved into more and more projects that should be left to the states, local governments, and individuals. It is already too big to be operated efficiently or economically.

The size and power of the federal government are undermining the whole fibre of our republic through a disregard for the sovereignty of the states and by encroachment on the lives of the people.

The tendency to ask Washington to solve problems has been partly caused by two world wars in which the people unquestioningly accepted federal expansion and controls. Since then, the people have not looked back to their own states as they should.

We must also realize that the states themselves are partly responsible because they have delegated much of their responsibility. The full blame cannot be placed on the bureaucrats who are always making new plans for federal expansion. The people and the states must bear responsibility, because they did not take action themselves to solve problems or to resist federal encroachment.

They are also responsible because they accepted the mistaken idea that if the federal government does something for them it costs nothing.

The mistaken ideology of liberating the masses through more, rather than less control of the people is unfortunately being accepted by too many of our citizens today.

And only the citizens can reverse this trend. If they do not, they will have the kind of government they deserve.

WELCOME BROTHER INDIAN!

The Blackfeet Indian Tribe of Montana is waging a "War on Poverty" of its own -- using Right to Work as a non-poverty meal ticket. The determined action of the Blackfeet has had the Interior Department's Bureau of Indian Affairs, the AFL-CIO, and some assorted Congressmen in a tizzy! When contacted here in Washington the Bureau sought to laugh the whole thing off. The AFL-CIO in Montana tried to call the whole thing off -- with assists from Washington political sources. And Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall ducked out of the picture, with his press agent saying the project on which the Indians were demanding the Right to Work without having to join a union would be completed "before the lawyers finish pondering." The National Committee is seeking the identity of the Blackfeet tribal leaders -- for possible testimony at the 14(b) Congressional hearings which are expected.

Vigorous protests by many persons and organizations are now being made against purchases by our government of foreign drugs produced on the basis of formulae and methods stolen from ethical American manufacturers."

CHECK OLD REFRIGERATORS

Reports from every section of the country within the last few weeks have told of the deaths of children who shut themselves into unused refrigerators while playing. More than once, too, a youngster has been found and removed from a box only after lack of oxygen had resulted in irreparable damage to the brain. In any event, the tragic occurrences in question should warn every community in the nation to institute a careful check of any such perils. It is a simple matter to remove locks or doors and thus make the old boxes harmless.

In view of the likelihood that health warning labels will eventually be required on cigarette packages, it gives one pause to be told that scaring people is not necessarily the best way to get them to do, or not to do, something for their own good.

This conclusion about human behavior comes from a psychologist with the University of North Carolina School of Public Health and is based primarily on a study of an oral polio vaccination campaign in Florida.

There it was found, reports Dr. C. David Jenkins, that the fear of a disease or the risk of getting a disease doesn't seem to encourage people to seek a way of preventing it or reducing the risk.

Excessive scare campaigns may, in fact, have just the opposite result. Fear of cancer, he says, has actually driven some women away from screening clinics.

Apparently the need is to create a moderate degree of concern in people--something more than apathy but less than fear.

Yet some of the people in Florida took the vaccine because "it was the thing to do. It was socially fashionable. It was a way to become a part of the community."

The psychologist credits newspapers with doing a better job of conveying health information to the public than any other communications medium.

Unfortunately: "Teaching facts doesn't always motivate people's behavior," he says. "There are more emotional factors involved in behavior than a string of facts."

Mr. Brown had just returned to the city and was introduced to the new nurse, who was unusually pretty.

"She is sensible and scientific, too," said Mrs. Brown, "and she says she will allow no one to kiss the baby while she is near."

"No one would want to," replied Mr. Brown.

"Indeed!" snapped the fond mother.

"I mean not while she is near," faltered the father, endeavoring to make things better.

The nurse did not stay long.

Alchemists are pictured historically as naive medieval scientists bending over hot furnaces earnestly cooking up recipes for transmuting common metals into gold. The truth is that by the 16th century most alchemists were cheerful charlatans plying what was perhaps the world's first modern confidence game. Gold-makers with "secret formulas" operated all over Europe, despite a unique occupational hazard. A gold-maker could find himself in bad trouble if he didn't produce, and in worse trouble if he did. This odd dilemma arose from the greed and power of the rulers who were the gold-makers' chief patrons. Petty German tyrants had no qualms about kidnaping any well - reputed alchemist passing through their territory and jailing and torturing him to compel his services. One Scotus, the best known of his day, was permanently crippled in this way before he escaped from a Teuton princeling. If, on the other hand, the alchemist came selling his knowledge -- for a whopping fee and heavy expenses--he might "make" a little gold while deferring his getaway. Typical of this ploy was Georg Honauer's method. While he and the Duke of Wurtemburg waited outside his locked and empty laboratory for a mixture to cook, a small boy crept from a chest inside to salt the pot with gold dust. It was with no sense of humor, but as a warning to others, that the Duke in 1597 had Honauer tinsel - draped like a Christmas tree and hanged in Stuttgart from a 35-foot iron gallows which was gilt-painted for the occasion. The gold gallows soon became a symbol that ended alchemical fakery.

OUR PHYSICIAN POPULATION GROWS

It is periodically charged that the number of practicing physicians in this country is not large enough to meet the need and the demand for medical services.

If such a fear has any validity at all, it would seem that the lack is being rapidly made up. The American Medical Association recently reported that the ratio of doctors per 100,000 population has increased from 137.8 to 146.7 in only three years. There is every reason to believe that the trend will continue. More students are enrolled in our medical schools than ever before, and this year's graduating classes totaled the highest in history. The number of those schools has grown from 77 to 87 in 17 years, five more are to be built shortly, and another six are in the planning stage.

The AMA News urges that physicians contribute to the future of medicine by giving guidance and inspiration to secondary school students who may be considering medical careers and must soon make a positive or negative decision. In its words, "By assisting these schools in their search for dedicated and well qualified students, today's physicians can assure a strong profession and a healthy America for tomorrow." No one who knows the caliber of the medical profession will doubt that such a challenge will be met.

So, there seem to be no grounds for believing that the standards of medical care in this country, which certainly are not surpassed anywhere, will suffer. There is, on the other hand, every reason for believing that those standards, aided by new discoveries and techniques, some of the literally revolutionary character, will surely improve.

KING-SIZED ALL THE WAY

A short time ago the Association of American Railroads issued the 13th edition of a leaflet called "Quiz On Railroads and Railroading". It proposes and answers 200 questions concerning every facet of this great industry -- from the size of the "Railroad Navy" (1,304 waterborne vessels of various kinds which are owned and operated by railroads) to the history of the caboose, a term used as early as 1855.

Of more immediate importance, "Quiz' ' provides some king-sized facts concerning the railroads' contribution to this country, its economy, and its security. In 1962, to cite a few, railroads performed 107 passenger miles of service for every man, woman and child in the country, and also, transported a ton of freight 3,190 miles and carried 41 pounds of mail. In the same year they employed 700,126 people who received salaries and wages of a staggering $4,662,113,000. Their tax bill over the 1956-62 period averaged $1 billion 13 million a year. And they spend close to $1.4 billion annually for supplies and services of a thousand and one kinds -- plus over $800 million for improvement to plant and equipment.

Then, when it comes to the national defense, the figures are still king-sized. During World War II they operated 113,891 troop trains. They transported some 42,700,000 members of the armed forces in these, in hospital trains, and in special cars. This does not include the millions of service people traveling singly or in small groups.

Figures such as these almost literally make the mind reel. Only a trained mathematician can visualize them. But they do give, to all of us, a vivid picture of the enormous importance of the railroad industry and of the urgent need, so widely discussed and publicized in late years, for legislation which will free them of obsolete regulatory fetters and permit them to do a still more effective job for the nation they have served so well and so long.

When the Long amendment came up for a vote, the man who led the adroit move to table it was Sen. "Three - Gun" Tom Dodd of Connecticut, a crusader against juvenile delinquency.

Dodd is a member of the Space Committee, but has attended not one meeting this year and only one last year. When he successfully moved to table the Long amendment, it cost the public enough money to have paid for several hundred Boy's Towns.

He got help from a so-called Republican liberal, Sen. Jack Javits of New York, who operates a law firm on the side and frequently talks out of both sides of his mouth where corporate interests are concerned.

The two Kennedy brothers also voted for the big $5 billion giveaway, as did two other ardent Kennedy backers, young Birch Bayh of Indiana and young Joe Tydings of Maryland.

Ed Long of Missouri, who filled the shoes of trust-busting Estes Kefauver on the Senate Judiciary Committee, voted for the big patent giveaway. So did Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, elected by charging Sen. Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma with speculating on the commodity market.

Sen. John Pastore of Rhode Island, who led the Senate battle to give space patents to American Tel & Tel and the Communications Satellite Corporation, voted for the big patent giveaway. This was not surprising. It WAS surprising that his young Rhode Island colleague Claiborne Pell joined him.

Stuart Symington of Missouri voted for the big patent giveaway. He usually votes with big business. So does Scoop Jackson of Washington state, home of the Boeing bomber.

Lister Hill of Alabama, crusader and author of federal financing for hospitals, in this case voted to finance the research of very healthy billion-dollar corporations. Bob Byrd of West Virginia, who quibbles over a few hundred thousand dollars going to unemployed unwed mothers in the District of Columbia, cast his vote for the billion-dollar giveaway.

Vance Hartke of Indiana, who almost succeeded in blocking a military man, Gen. William F. McKee, as head of the Federal Aviation Agency, in this case voted with the big space contractors who have been working with McKee through NASA.

All of the above except Javits are Democrats; most of them smart enough to know better.

—ONE LONE REPUBLICAN—

All of the Republicans except one voted for the patent giveaway — Hiram Fong, first Chinese-American to be elected to the Senate. He stood up against the space lobby.

It's sometimes said the Republicans aren't smart enough to know the public interest. But one Republican smart enough to know the score is George Aiken of Vermont, who had been razzing Johnson for delaying the reappointment of consumers' defender Charles Ross to the Federal Power Commission. Aiken voted for the giveaway.

Another significant Republican vote was that of John Williams of Delaware, who has been waging a year-long campaign against the few thousand dollars involved in Bobby Baker's influence peddling. He voted for the billion-dollar giveaway to the big space corporations. So did Thruston Morton of Kentucky, former chairman of the Republican National Committee, and another ex - national committeeman, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania.

Democrats who voted against the giveaway, 26 in all, were led by Clint Anderson, N. M., and Mike Mansfield, Mont., the Majority Leader. They were joined by Bartlett, Alaska; Bass, Tenn.; Burdick, N. D.; Church, Idaho; Clark, Pa.; Douglas, Ill.; Ellender, La.; Fulbright, Ark.; Gurening, Alaska; McGovern, S. D.; McIntyre, N. H.; McNamara, Mich.; Metcalf, Mont.; Montoya, N. M.; Morse and Neuberger, Ore.; Moss, Utah; Nelson and Proxmire, Wis.; Talmadge, Ga.; Yarborough, Tex.; Young, Ohio; and, of course, Long, La.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Use of Out-Of-Date Data by Federal Agency Wastes Millions of Dollars Intended for Jobless.

Washington, D. C.: -- A ten-cent phone call could have prevented the misuse of many millions of government dollars. But the call was not made.

No money was stolen--just misused. Few outsiders know just how many millions of dollars were wasted by one agency, the Area Redevelopment Administration, in an effort to help the unemployed.

At a minimum, the ineptly used funds come to over $17 million. It could run ten times that. Only the comptroller general of the U. S., Joe Campbell, and his eagle - eyed General Accounting Office know.

They delved into appropriations totaling over $700 million. They came up with the charge that the ARA threw millions into areas where improved conditions did not warrant the expenditure of the relief funds.

And, says the Comptroller, the ARA on the other hand did not spend enough money in depressed regions where more funds should have been spent.

This misuse of federal millions resulted from the ARA's failure to check the latest unemployment figures in the districts to which they rushed money for public works.

The ARA says it did not have current figures available.

Yet such data was available just down the street from ARA headquarters. The up to date figures on joblessness were and have been in the Labor Dept. One phone call could have given the ARA all the statistics it needed.

Instead, the ARA last year and during the end of 1963 used 1961 statistics or the data taken from one early month in 1962.

As a result hundreds of millions of dollars were spent on the basis of figures anywhere from 5 to 16 months old.

Thus, the millions were allocated in areas despite the fact that there had been "significant" changes in those cities and regions. We have the word of Comptroller Campbell that the changes were significant.

Thus cities which did not need heavy assistance got it. And depressed areas grew more depressed when they did not receive the full amounts they needed to help their growing joblessness.

In all, the ARA got $400 million for accelerated public works with which to create jobs in needy areas in Oct. 1962. Then in May 1963 it got another $450 million.

ARA's task was to discover how many jobless there were in each needy district or city. Then to spend money in that region or community accordingly. There was a set formula depending on the number of unemployed.

Therefore, much depended on the currency of the data. If a city had an increase in joblessness, money for job-making public works was poured in.

But instead of using month-old figures available over in the Labor Dept.'s Bureau of Employment Security, the ARA used 1961 and early 1962 data.

Thus, one Midwest city was overpaid $17.3 million because the job situation had improved rapidly since 1961 and there were far fewer unemployed.

But a city such as Miami, Fla., which had an influx of jobless between 1961 and 1964 was underpaid -- or underaided -- by almost $4 million. By using the 1961 figure of Miami unemployed, the ARA in 1963 and 1964 overlooked the tens of thousands of needy Cuban refugees.

Mr. Campbell in a statement deplored the ARA's re-use of "the same non-current data it had used" in the past.

And recently, when the Labor Dept. attempted to secure funds for even more exact, up-to-the-minute studies of the jobless, Congress refused to give the department some $2.5 million.

So the study now won't be made. Seems penny-wise and millions foolish.

Mrs. Lorene Limbaugh

Mrs. Limbaugh To Retire Sunday

Mrs. Lorene Cain Limbaugh, an employee of Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, will retire Sunday, June 27.

Mrs. Limbaugh, well known to Sikeston and the surrounding area as "The Chief" has worked for the Telephone Company for 37 years. She was first employed in the Sikeston office on August 6, 1926, as an operator. At that time, the office was located in the Milem building on Front Street.

In June of 1941, she went to Kennett as Chief Operator-Cashier and remained there until September of 1944. While Mrs. Limbaugh was in Kennett, the Telephone Office Building burned and a temporary switchboard had to be set up in a truck.

In September of 1944, Mrs. Limbaugh was made Chief Operator in the Sikeston office and remained here until her retirement.

Many changes have taken place in these 37 years and Mrs. Limbaugh has had a part in all of these changes such as from the manual switchboard to the modern dial system that is now in operation.

Community Club Meets With Mrs. Gruen

Mrs. Nelson Gruen was hostess to the Canalou Community Club on Wednesday afternoon, June 16 at the home of her mother, Mrs. Dessie Shepherd, in Canalou. Mrs. Cordell Bixler was a guest and Mrs. Bert Moore renewed her membership.

Public Affairs chairman, Mrs. W. C. Burnett, presented the lesson on the Probate Court. Probably because the work of this court is not spectacular, many people know little about it. This is unfortunate because nearly every family comes to this court sooner or later, since it has to do with the settling of estates. The Probate Court makes sure that the provisions of wills are carried out, or lacking a will, that the property of the deceased goes to heirs according to law. It protects the rights of creditors of the deceased and collects amounts due to estate. It also has supervisory jurisdiction over the estates of minors and those whom the court finds mentally incompetent.

It is impossible to cover all phases of the court's work in such a lesson, but the importance of leaving a will properly drawn by an attorney was explained. That is first step in making the work of the Probate Court effective.

The club will meet with Mrs. W. O. Burnett on July 21 when a string trio will give a program.

Reds Top Cards 6-2

Jim Maloney did not pitch a no hitter, but he didn't have to in order to beat the St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night.

The big Cincinnati righthander did hurl a six-hitter and struck out 11 as the Reds beat the Red Birds, 6-2, in Cincinnati.

The story read the same in New York where the Yankees clobbered the A's, 8-3, piling up all their runs in the first two innings.

Still not hitting and not pitching, the Cardinals were an easy touch for Maloney, who retired the first 14 batters to face him before Ken Boyer singled. Maloney threw a no-hitter for 10 innings in his last start before losing.

The Reds had a 6-0 lead off loser Curt Simmons and reliever Don Dennis before pinch-hitter Tito Francona singled home two runs for St. Louis in the seventh.

The defeat sank the Cardinals deeper into seventh place with a 30-36 record, 11 1/2 games behind league - leading Los Angeles.

The Yankees bombed the A's with four singles, a sacrifice fly and Ray Barker's homer off loser Diego Segui in the first inning for five runs and a two-run single by Bobby Richardson highlighted a three-run second.

Whitey Ford protected the lead for six innings before Steve Hamilton relieved in the seventh.

Ronnie Sheldon 2-2 of the A's will try to stop his old Yankee mates today against Mel Stottlemyre 7-3.

The Cardinals will send Tracy Stallard 3- 2 against Jim O'Toole 1-5 and the Reds in a night game.

French Star Defeats Clark

MELUN, France AP -- This has been a memorable June for 29-year-old Michel Jazy, the French track ace who became a national hero when he ran a world record mile in 3:53.6 on June 9.

The week before his mile feat at Rennes, Jazy had run the fastest mile ever by a European, a 3:55.5 at Paris on June 3. After his 3:53.6 mile he set a European record on June 11 in the 5,000 meters of 13:29, and in the succeeding days won at various meets in eastern France.

His latest June achievement came Wednesday in this Paris suburb when he bettered the world record for the two miles with a 8:22.6 in beating Australia's Ron Clarke by 14 yards. In the process, he bettered his own world mark of 7:49.2 for the 3,000 meters with a 7:49.

"The two miles is a little short for me and I expected to be defeated," Clarke said. "But I can still be happy because I bettered not only my best time for the distance, which was 8:32, but in making 8:24.8, I also bettered the old world record of Schul."

This was a reference to the listed mark of 8:26.4 set by Bob Schul of West Milton, Ohio, in 1964.

Fabick Rap First National Police Cut Canvas Products

At Farris Field in the American League last night, Fabick blasted First National, 12 to 1.

The game started with neither team scoring until the third when First National scored the first and only run scored by their team, to take the lead--at least until Fabick came to bat in the fourth. When that happened, Fabick powered out four hits to smash in their four runs. In the fifth, Fabick did the same, but instead, scored five runs on two singles and a double. First National remained with only one run; however, they did grab their two hits in that frame. In the sixth, Fabick scored three runs to total their runs to 12.

Bye pitched Fabick's win and gave the loss to First National's pitcher, Brase. Neither boy had relief. Bye held Brase's team with only one run and only two hits. Brase gave up 12 runs and eight hits.

Crain and Deane collected the only two hits for First National and Forrest had two for four for the winners.

Police rolled to a victory over Canvas Products in the second game.

Moore went all the way in taking the win for Police as he gave McDowell the loss. Moore held his opposing team to only four hits and only two runs. McDowell, with relief from Sipult in the fifth, also held Police to only four runs; however, to eight hits. Police started the game off with only one run in the first. Canvas came back to score one in the second to tie the game. Police did not score again until they erupted in the fourth to send seven men around the bases to score. That brought the score to 8 to 1. In the fifth Canvas managed their last run on two hits. Neither team scored in the sixth.

The big men in hitting for Canvas were Stewart, Sipult, Green, and McDowell. Davis, Moore, Terrell, and Mills had the four hits for Police.

Sports TALK

By DON SAVAGE

One of the most avid of all sportsman and by far the most colorful is the fisherman.

This season many men have ventured forth into the wilds of their favorite lake or stream, in an attempt to bring home a satisfactory catch. Fishing success at many of the lakes has been very good according to the latest records and surveys. For example, two fishermen at the Schell-Osage management area in Henry County, took 13 bass from Schell lake, that totaled 53 pounds an average of more than 4 pounds each. Carp fishing has contributed greatly to the reduction of fishing fever for both pole and line anglers and bow and arrow fishermen throughout the state. Carp have been suckers for cottonseed cake and limbliness. Sixteen such lines produced 73 pound of carp for two fishermen over two nights of fishing, during May.

Other lakes under the Missouri State Conservation Commission management are also producing abundantly, but are not attracting enough anglers for an adequate harvest. Lake Paho in Mercer county, which could serve as a yard stick for the other lakes, was recently surveyed by fisheries personnel. The results showed that over 42 per cent of the bass netted and tagged were over 10 inches long with several weighing over 6 pounds. One third of the bluegill sampled were over 7 inches long or an average of 1/2 pound each. These fish are simply waiting for a tempting morsel from some anglers line, as fishing pressure has been extremely light this year.

Lake Hunnewell in Shelby county and Sever Lake in Knox county have yielded good catches of bass, bluegill and channel cat thus far this spring. But, fishing pressure has been moderate to light on both of these lakes. So, fishermen who are looking for some uncrowded waters, and a place to fill their creels, should try one of the Conservation Commission managed lakes.

Jack Dempsey Has 70th Birthday Today

NEW YORK AP -- "Congratulations, Champ."

Jack Dempsey turned 70 today, but the calls and greetings have been coming his way for more than a week.

Mrs. Dempsey was to make it official today with a birthday party for the old Manassa Mauler at the Broadway restaurant bearing his name.

Although he lost the heavyweight crown to Gene Tunney nearly 39 years ago, Dempsey still is hailed as "Champ," wherever he goes.

He looks fit enough to get into the ring. He stands ramrod straight, and there's only a little gray in his black hair. Dempsey carries his 215 pounds like an active athlete, and he still moves as softly as a tiger.

The Champ bubbles with energy. Daily, from a table at the window of his restaurant, he jumps up to sign autographs and pose for pictures with oldtimers, who remember him from a way back, and youngsters who have heard about him from grandpa.

He was a lean tiger of 24 when he chopped down Jess Willard, a giant of 245 pounds in three rounds and won the heavyweight crown at Toledo, Ohio, July 14, 1919. It was announced that Dempsey weighed 187 pounds, but he said he scaled only 180.

"Beating Willard was my greatest thrill," said Dempsey.

"It opened the doors of the world to me. It helped me to meet presidents and kings and people from all over. It made me what I am today."

He has no regrets over the "long count" Tunney got in their Chicago return fight when Dempsey floored the former Marine. Dempsey didn't go into a neutral corner, and the referee didn't count until he did.

It was estimated that Tunney was given a respite of 14 to 16 seconds in that fight at Chicago, Sept. 22, 1927. Tunney won a 10-round decision.

Clay Asks For Annulment From Non-Muslim Wife

MIAMI, Fla. AP -- Cassius Clay wants his 10-month marriage ended and his wife doesn't, so the heavyweight champion apparently has another fight on his hands, this one in court.

"I just love my husband and I want to be with him," said pretty, 25-year-old Sonji Clay when she was told that Clay had accused her of failing to be a good Muslim wife. "I will fight to keep my husband."

"It's just this religion. I have tried to accept it, and I have explained this to him, but I just don't understand it. It's very hard to change to the way they want me to be."

The 23-year-old champion, who has been a Muslim since he won the Olympic title in 1960, filed suit for an annulment in a Miami court Wednesday, complaining that Sonji had reneged on a promise to convert to Clay's Muslim faith.

He also said she did not follow Muslim dictates against the use of whisky, tobacco and facial makeup and Muslim requirements that "all female adherents cover their bodies with floor length dresses of plain and simple design."

"We've always had our little arguments about clothes," Sonji said in Chicago where she is staying at the home of her godmother. But she said she had done her best to respect the faith and its strictures.

According to the suit, the marriage began to break up the day after Clay defended his title against Sonny Liston, May 25 in Lewiston, Maine.

The next day Clay found Sonji in the lobby of the Schine Inn at Chicopee, Mass., "both attired and conducting herself in a manner contrary to tenets and beliefs of the Islamic faith," the suit said.

They had an argument and Sonji left for Chicago. They did not see each other again until June 11 when they went to a Chicago dressmaker to get some of those "plain and simple" floor-length dresses.

The suit asked for an annulment, but if an annulment is not granted, it asks a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty as an alternative.

An annulment would preclude Sonji from any alimony or property.

Sonji, a dark-haired beauty with a waspish waist, married Clay in a civil ceremony in Gary, Ind., Aug. 14. Clay's suit said they were married previously by common law in Miami on July 24. She denied that.

Clay few from Miami to Los Angeles for a television interview and refused to talk about the suit.

French Star Defeats Clark

MELUN, France AP -- This has been a memorable June for 29-year-old Michel Jazy, the French track ace who became a national hero when he ran a world record mile in 3:53.6 on June 9.

The week before his mile feat at Rennes, Jazy had run the fastest mile ever by a European, a 3:55.5 at Paris on June 3. After his 3:53.6 mile he set a European record on June 11 in the 5,000 meters of 13:29, and in the succeeding days won at various meets in eastern France.

His latest June achievement came Wednesday in this Paris suburb when he bettered the world record for the two miles with a 8:22.6 in beating Australia's Ron Clarke by 14 yards. In the process, he bettered his own world mark of 7:49.2 for the 3,000 meters with a 7:49.

"The two miles is a little short for me and I expected to be defeated," Clarke said. "But I can still be happy because I bettered not only my best time for the distance, which was 8:32, but in making 8:24.8, I also bettered the old world record of Schul."

This was a reference to the listed mark of 8:26.4 set by Bob Schul of West Milton, Ohio, in 1964.

Fabick Rap First National Police Cut Canvas Products

At Farris Field in the American League last night, Fabick blasted First National, 12 to 1.

The game started with neither team scoring until the third when First National scored the first and only run scored by their team, to take the lead--at least until Fabick came to bat in the fourth. When that happened, Fabick powered out four hits to smash in their four runs. In the fifth, Fabick did the same, but instead, scored five runs on two singles and a double. First National remained with only one run; however, they did grab their two hits in that frame. In the sixth, Fabick scored three runs to total their runs to 12.

Bye pitched Fabick's win and gave the loss to First National's pitcher, Brase. Neither boy had relief. Bye held Brase's team with only one run and only two hits. Brase gave up 12 runs and eight hits.

Crain and Deane collected the only two hits for First National and Forrest had two for four for the winners.

Police rolled to a victory over Canvas Products in the second game.

Moore went all the way in taking the win for Police as he gave McDowell the loss. Moore held his opposing team to only four hits and only two runs. McDowell, with relief from Sipult in the fifth, also held Police to only four runs; however, to eight hits. Police started the game off with only one run in the first. Canvas came back to score one in the second to tie the game. Police did not score again until they erupted in the fourth to send seven men around the bases to score. That brought the score to 8 to 1. In the fifth Canvas managed their last run on two hits. Neither team scored in the sixth.

The big men in hitting for Canvas were Stewart, Sipult, Green, and McDowell. Davis, Moore, Terrell, and Mills had the four hits for Police.

Sports TALK

By DON SAVAGE

One of the most avid of all sportsman and by far the most colorful is the fisherman.

This season many men have ventured forth into the wilds of their favorite lake or stream, in an attempt to bring home a satisfactory catch. Fishing success at many of the lakes has been very good according to the latest records and surveys. For example, two fishermen at the Schell-Osage management area in Henry County, took 13 bass from Schell lake, that totaled 53 pounds an average of more than 4 pounds each. Carp fishing has contributed greatly to the reduction of fishing fever for both pole and line anglers and bow and arrow fishermen throughout the state. Carp have been suckers for cottonseed cake and limbliness. Sixteen such lines produced 73 pound of carp for two fishermen over two nights of fishing, during May.

Other lakes under the Missouri State Conservation Commission management are also producing abundantly, but are not attracting enough anglers for an adequate harvest. Lake Paho in Mercer county, which could serve as a yard stick for the other lakes, was recently surveyed by fisheries personnel. The results showed that over 42 per cent of the bass netted and tagged were over 10 inches long with several weighing over 6 pounds. One third of the bluegill sampled were over 7 inches long or an average of 1/2 pound each. These fish are simply waiting for a tempting morsel from some anglers line, as fishing pressure has been extremely light this year.

Lake Hunnewell in Shelby county and Sever Lake in Knox county have yielded good catches of bass, bluegill and channel cat thus far this spring. But, fishing pressure has been moderate to light on both of these lakes. So, fishermen who are looking for some uncrowded waters, and a place to fill their creels, should try one of the Conservation Commission managed lakes.

Jack Dempsey Has 70th Birthday Today

NEW YORK AP -- "Congratulations, Champ."

Jack Dempsey turned 70 today, but the calls and greetings have been coming his way for more than a week.

Mrs. Dempsey was to make it official today with a birthday party for the old Manassa Mauler at the Broadway restaurant bearing his name.

Although he lost the heavyweight crown to Gene Tunney nearly 39 years ago, Dempsey still is hailed as "Champ," wherever he goes.

He looks fit enough to get into the ring. He stands ramrod straight, and there's only a little gray in his black hair. Dempsey carries his 215 pounds like an active athlete, and he still moves as softly as a tiger.

The Champ bubbles with energy. Daily, from a table at the window of his restaurant, he jumps up to sign autographs and pose for pictures with oldtimers, who remember him from a way back, and youngsters who have heard about him from grandpa.

He was a lean tiger of 24 when he chopped down Jess Willard, a giant of 245 pounds in three rounds and won the heavyweight crown at Toledo, Ohio, July 14, 1919. It was announced that Dempsey weighed 187 pounds, but he said he scaled only 180.

"Beating Willard was my greatest thrill," said Dempsey. "It opened the doors of the world to me. It helped me to meet presidents and kings and people from all over. It made me what I am today."

He has no regrets over the "long count" Tunney got in their Chicago return fight when Dempsey floored the former Marine. Dempsey didn't go into a neutral corner, and the referee didn't count until he did.

It was estimated that Tunney was given a respite of 14 to 16 seconds in that fight at Chicago, Sept. 22, 1927. Tunney won a 10-round decision.

Clay Asks For Annulment From Non-Muslim Wife

MIAMI, Fla. AP -- Cassius Clay wants his 10-month marriage ended and his wife doesn't, so the heavyweight champion apparently has another fight on his hands, this one in court.

"I just love my husband and I want to be with him," said pretty, 25-year-old Sonji Clay when she was told that Clay had accused her of failing to be a good Muslim wife. "I will fight to keep my husband."

"It's just this religion. I have tried to accept it, and I have explained this to him, but I just don't understand it. It's very hard to change to the way they want me to be."

The 23-year-old champion, who has been a Muslim since he won the Olympic title in 1960, filed suit for an annulment in a Miami court Wednesday, complaining that Sonji had reneged on a promise to convert to Clay's Muslim faith.

He also said she did not follow Muslim dictates against the use of whisky, tobacco and facial makeup and Muslim requirements that "all female adherents cover their bodies with floor length dresses of plain and simple design."

"We've always had our little arguments about clothes," Sonji said in Chicago where she is staying at the home of her godmother. But she said she had done her best to respect the faith and its strictures.

According to the suit, the marriage began to break up the day after Clay defended his title against Sonny Liston, May 25 in Lewiston, Maine.

The next day Clay found Sonji in the lobby of the Schine Inn at Chicopee, Mass., "both attired and conducting herself in a manner contrary to tenets and beliefs of the Islamic faith," the suit said.

They had an argument and Sonji left for Chicago. They did not see each other again until June 11 when they went to a Chicago dressmaker to get some of those "plain and simple" floor-length dresses.

The suit asked for an annulment, but if an annulment is not granted, it asks a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty as an alternative.

An annulment would preclude Sonji from any alimony or property.

Sonji, a dark-haired beauty with a waspish waist, married Clay in a civil ceremony in Gary, Ind., Aug. 14. Clay's suit said they were married previously by common law in Miami on July 24. She denied that.

Clay few from Miami to Los Angeles for a television interview and refused to talk about the suit.

NEW MADRID'S main street is getting its face lifted this summer as youth corps workers repair broken sidewalks. This work is being done on South Main.

YOUTH WORKERS build a new sidewalk at the Portageville high school. Before they finish, they will have mixed, poured, and finished more than 1,700 sacks of cement.

A BREAK is taken after hours of scraping in laying out a baseball field at Howardville high school on Highway 61 in New Madrid County. This group is part of the National Youth Corps.

REMOVAL OF AN EYESORE is only part of the work that is being done at the Lilbourn High School by National Youth Corps workers. Here an old stump is being dug out.

Youth Corps Projects Underway in Six Towns

NEW MADRID — Neighborhood Youth Corps projects in six New Madrid County communities are into their second week and approximately 340 youngsters are now working, according to Robert Pulliam, county program supervisor.

Pulliam said that the exact number of boys and girls involved in the program varies from day to day as new applicants are approved by the state office in Jefferson City. Eventually, more than 400 young people are expected to be enrolled.

In order to qualify for NYC, a boy or girl must be between the ages of 16-21. Each applicant must prove a need for this work. Each youngster can work a maximum of 30 hours per week and is paid $1.25 per hour. Each will receive five hours counseling each week.

A wide variety of chores are being performed by this work force. Some youngsters have been placed in secretarial positions. Others are working with the county's conservation agency, and still others are cutting weeds, repairing sidewalks, cleaning ditches, laying out athletic fields, repairing books, and a host of other tasks. Essentially, they are doing work that wouldn't ordinarily be done by regular municipal and school maintenance personnel.

Pulliam emphasized that counseling, though limited to five hours each week, is the most important phase of the program. Counseling is done by supervisors in each community and covers such areas as job placement and opportunities, personal and home cleanliness, effects of alcohol, manners and morals. Pulliam said that the program will be worth while if just a small percentage of the youngsters can be "lifted up" through these counseling sessions.

Benefits from the Neighborhood Youth Corps program in the county are many fold. First, the boys and girls benefit directly because the money they earn will enable them to meet some of the expense of another year of school and they have the personal satisfaction of doing a job and being paid for their labor.

Communities and school districts are receiving present and long range benefits from various work projects now underway. For example, in New Madrid ditches are being cleaned, city sidewalks are being repaired, books are being mended, school buildings are undergoing extensive cleaning, and youngsters with the help of the city engineer are laying out and constructing athletic fields. Work of this nature is being done in six communities.

Approximately $200,000 will be distributed in the county through worker's wages, supervisors' salaries, and materials purchased. This is money that would not otherwise have been available.

Twelve supervisors are now at work in the county. At Lilbourn they are Bob Frazier and Virginia Hurt; New Madrid, Blanchard Boone and Mrs. Sarah Dyke; Morehouse, Fred Glover, John Bohanan, Mrs. Willa Alsop, and Mrs. Lorita Jeanne McIntyre; Howardville, William Jackson; and Portageville, James Englehart, Donald Pickens, and Edsell Allen. The program at Risco is being supervised by the job security division of the Missouri Employment Service.

This program is being administered by the Missouri Office of Urban Affairs and is a result of the Department of 1964 labor economic opportunity act.

A new, permanent award was presented to the Combat Defense Squadron for their outstanding cooperation in all of the past blood drives. The squadron has won the rotating award three times during the past year.

Technical Sergeant Herbert Totty, 97th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, was awarded the ARC gold lapel pin and achievement card in recognition of completion of his fifth donated gallon of blood. Five gallons of blood is an accumulation of 40 trips to the bloodmobile.

Youth Corps Projects Underway in Six Towns

NEW MADRID — Neighborhood Youth Corps projects in six New Madrid County communities are into their second week and approximately 340 youngsters are now working, according to Robert Pulliam, county program supervisor.

Pulliam said that the exact number of boys and girls involved in the program varies from day to day as new applicants are approved by the state office in Jefferson City. Eventually, more than 400 young people are expected to be enrolled.

In order to qualify for NYC, a boy or girl must be between the ages of 16-21. Each applicant must prove a need for this work. Each youngster can work a maximum of 30 hours per week and is paid $1.25 per hour. Each will receive five hours counseling each week.

A wide variety of chores are being performed by this work force. Some youngsters have been placed in secretarial positions. Others are working with the county's conservation agency, and still others are cutting weeds, repairing sidewalks, cleaning ditches, laying out athletic fields, repairing books, and a host of other tasks. Essentially, they are doing work that wouldn't ordinarily be done by regular municipal and school maintenance personnel.

Pulliam emphasized that counseling, though limited to five hours each week, is the most important phase of the program. Counseling is done by supervisors in each community and covers such areas as job placement and opportunities, personal and home cleanliness, effects of alcohol, manners and morals. Pulliam said that the program will be worth while if just a small percentage of the youngsters can be "lifted up" through these counseling sessions.

Benefits from the Neighborhood Youth Corps program in the county are many fold. First, the boys and girls benefit directly because the money they earn will enable them to meet some of the expense of another year of school and they have the personal satisfaction of doing a job and being paid for their labor.

Communities and school districts are receiving present and long range benefits from various work projects now underway. For example, in New Madrid ditches are being cleaned, city sidewalks are being repaired, books are being mended, school buildings are undergoing extensive cleaning, and youngsters with the help of the city engineer are laying out and constructing athletic fields. Work of this nature is being done in six communities.

Approximately $200,000 will be distributed in the county through worker's wages, supervisors' salaries, and materials purchased. This is money that would not otherwise have been available.

Twelve supervisors are now at work in the county. At Lilbourn they are Bob Frazier and Virginia Hurt; New Madrid, Blanchard Boone and Mrs. Sarah Dyke; Morehouse, Fred Glover, John Bohanan, Mrs. Willa Alsop, and Mrs. Lorita Jeanne McIntyre; Howardville, William Jackson; and Portageville, James Englehart, Donald Pickens, and Edsell Allen. The program at Risco is being supervised by the job security division of the Missouri Employment Service.

This program is being administered by the Missouri Office of Urban Affairs and is a result of the Department of 1964 labor economic opportunity act.

BLYTHEVILLE, Ark. -- Airman First Class Harold L. Mathenia, son of Mr. and Mrs. James I. Mathenia of Marston, Mo., has arrived for duty at Blytheville AFB, Ark.

Airman Mathenia, a supply inventory specialist, previously served at Andrews AFB, Md. His new unit is part of the Strategic Air Command (SAC) which keeps the nation's intercontinental missiles and jet bombers on constant alert.

The airman is a graduate of Steele (Mo.) High School.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., -- The American Red Cross recently gave public recognition to organizations and individuals of Blytheville AFB whose cooperation during the last bloodmobile drive helped to make the fiscal year 1965 blood drive an overall success.

For reaching or exceeding 100 per cent of their assigned goals, the 97th Combat Defense Squadron, Detachment 14-26th Weather Squadron, 97th Transportation Squadron, 65th Munitions Maintenance Squadron and the 97th Food Service Squadron were given the American Red Cross certificate of appreciation.

Weather received the award as the outstanding contributing organization. This award is presented to the most outstanding unit, based on percentage of their goal, at the close of each bloodmobile visit.

A new, permanent award was presented to the Combat Defense Squadron for their outstanding cooperation in all of the past blood drives. The squadron has won the rotating award three times during the past year.

Technical Sergeant Herbert Totty, 97th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, was awarded the ARC gold lapel pin and achievement card in recognition of completion of his fifth donated gallon of blood. Five gallons of blood is an accumulation of 40 trips to the bloodmobile.

Presenting the award was Colonel John W. Livingston, 97th Bomb Wing commander.

Modern Wars Hard On Generals

SEOUL, South Korea AP -- "If we ever get this blankety-blank war over, the United States will never get involved in another blankety-blank war like it again."

Those words were spoken off the record by Gen. Mark W. Clark as the fighting in Korea drew to an end. Inasmuch as Clark is retired from public life and there is no security involved, his remark is worth repeating now because of its irony.

Twelve years after the end of the Korean War, the United States is involved in a war in Viet Nam and there is every indication the fighting will be just as blankety-blank frustrating as it was in Korea.

Fifteen years ago, on the morning of June 25, 1950, North Korea Communist infantry, supported by Russian tanks and artillery, cracked a hole in the weak defenses along the 38th Parallel. It was the beginning of a war that lasted three years, claimed 60,000 American lives and 103,000 wounded.

But that wasn't the end. In the decade since, the American taxpayers have poured $4.5 billion dollars in various forms of aid and assistance to the citizenry of the Republic of Korea.

Mark Clark was driven to profanity over the situation in Korea for the same reason Gen. Douglas MacArthur was fired and Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway was happy to get a transfer to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Clark succeeded Ridgway as supreme commander of United Nations forces in Korea.

The maddening thing about commanding troops in Korea was the limitation on maneuverability. By the time Gen. Clark finally affixed his signature to an armistice, it took approval from the Pentagon to move a unit as large as a batallion along the purposely stalemated front. And everyone said the Pentagon couldn't give approval for ordering that battalion to attack without an okay from the State Department.

"If we ever get in a war here again we'll use all the weapons we've got," Clark also said off the record a decade ago.

Should the North Koreans strike again, they would get a hot reception, whether nuclear weapons were on the program or not. There are 650,000 Republic of Korea and U.S. forces along the front today.

Fifteen years ago, the Communists hit without warning and the lightly defended lines along the 38th parallel caved in immediately.

The United Nations Security Council convened, branded the attack "aggression," and 16 nations sent combat troops and seven others contributed complements, such as hospitals.

American troops from Japan reached Korea five days after the fighting started, but couldn't stem the tide. By midsummer, Gen. MacArthur's U. N. Command was squeezed into a narrow area far to the south which became known as the Pusan perimeter.

Gen. MacArthur broke out of the Pusan perimeter on Sept. 15, 1950 in one of the boldest maneuvers of his career. The 1st Marine and 7th Infantry divisions were landed at Inchon, far up the neck of the Korean peninsula, while the 1st Cavalry came banging out across the plains for Taegu, Taejon and on up through the mountain passes to slam the back door on Seoul.

The whole North Korean army was finished, leaving the 38th Parallel undefended for a mad dash to Pyongyang and the Yalu. The threat to Manchuria, in November 1951, brought the Chinese into the fighting and the United States and the Republic of Korea had a new war on their hands.

The demilitarized zone, which divides North and South Korea, starts along the Han River estuary, on the western coast, then turns north to a spot 15 miles south of Kaesong, then east, then north again to about 15 miles north of Chorwon, once the site of bloody fighting, east again to a spot north of the Hwachon Reservoir, then northeast to a point on the Japan Sea slightly south of Kosong.

The Kaesong area, north of Seoul, is guarded by 50,000 Americans. The rest of the zone is manned by 600,000 South Korean infantry.

The strength of the Communists in Korea is open to conjecture.

According to the official report submitted to the Armistice Commission June 14, 1965, 205,620 Communist troops have arrived and 817,239 departed since July 27, 1953.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I was married last December and have just learned that we will be having a child in several months.

This evening my husband said in a matter-of-fact tone, "Of course we will save money on doctor bills because my father will see you through the pregnancy and deliver the baby." I became thoroughly unhinged by this suggestion. I told my husband I am very fond of his father and that I respect his competence as a physician but because of the intimacy of this type of relationship I could not bring myself to go to him as a patient.

My husband says I am immature and that his father will be hurt if we engage another physician. Who is right and who is wrong? You are going to decide for us. --WISCONSIN READER

Dear Reader: The relationship between a woman and her obstetrician is a very special one. The choice should be yours, and yours alone.

If your husband is a "leaner" (and I suspect he is) it would be unwise to get his father into the act for still another reason. A young man should not be haunted by the fear that he couldn't even bring a child into the world without his father's help.

Dear Ann Landers: My oldest daughter who is 12 has developed a terrible habit of lying. She makes up tall tales about herself, her friends and her family. As a rule they are not stories that would hurt anyone, but they are lies nonetheless.

I've tried reasoning with her, taking away privileges and spanking her. It's like talking to a rock. I'm afraid my three younger daughters will pick up her habit of lying if something isn't done soon.

Why should a 12-year-old be the center of attraction wherever she goes? This girl believes she must be first in all things. Please don't tell me she has had too much attention and is spoiled. My children came very close together and no child received more attention or love than another. I treat them all the same.

I am at my wits end trying to deal with this lying girl. Can you help me?--PUZZLED MOTHER

Dear Mother: Chronic lying is a symptom of insecurity. Your daughter lies because she feels unloved and unimportant. She is trying to build herself by telling startling stories.

Your hostility toward the girl and your defensiveness about your feelings is apparent in your letter.

I suggest that you get professional help. Perhaps when you learn why you feel as you do, your attitude toward her will improve and she will stop lying.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother and his wife and my sister and her husband have had a falling out.

The six of us used to have a lot of fun together. We never had a party without them.

Now my sister refuses to come to our home if our brother and his wife have been invited. My brother's wife feels the same way about them.

My husband and I have tried everything to persuade these four to be friends again but we can't get to first base. My husband says to invite them all and act as if nothing happened. Waht do you say?--ASUNDERSVILLE

Dear Asundersville: Since you are aware that these people don't want to be together, why try to force a situation which will make four people uncomfortable? Invite them separately.

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Storing Winter Woolens

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Polly

DEAR POLLY—When storing winter woolens do try this trick that was on my grandmother's list of home remedies. Instead of pungent moth balls and moth flakes, use odorless epsom salts wrapped in gauze or thin cloth. Also sprinkle epsom salts under the edges of wool rugs. I have done this for years and never had a moth problem.—JUDY

DEAR POLLY—When using ribbon to make a bow for a girl's dress, make a small buttonhole in the center of its length. Sew a small button on the dress where the bow is to be placed, button the ribbon on the dress and then tie in a bow. This is much better than pinning the ribbon on. Taking the bow off also makes for easier ironing.

When putting needles in a pin cushion, leave some thread on each needle and they won't easily disappear down into the pin cushion. If they do, it is easy to pull them out with the thread.—ELSIE

DEAR POLLY—I took down my heavy draperies and padded valances to replace them with lighter ones and no valances. The white enamel traverse rods did not look well against the walnut woodwork in the room. I bought dark brown gummed tape, cut it in pieces the lengths of the rods, flattened it on the front part of each rod and then carefully folded the edges over the tops and bottoms of the rods. The cords still pull the hook holders and the rods blend with the paneled walls and dark woodwork. In case I want to I can have white rods again by simply pulling off the plastic tape.—SARAH

DEAR POLLY—My grade school daughter needed a shoe tote bag. I cut a pair of my husband's old light blue corduroy pants off just below the worn knees, sewed a seam across and let the cuff down and used the hem to pull a drawstring through and made a loop at the end of the cord for her wrist.

I also use snug cuffs from worn socks to make clothes for her doll. I cut off the foot and the cuff can be used for a sheath dress or strapless sun dress. The girls have fun using their own ideas, too.—MRS. L. Z.

DEAR POLLY—My hint is for those who use powdered milk. Put the required amount of powder milk into a quart bottle and mark that level with red nail polish on the outside of the bottle. No more measuring will be needed as the bottle is just filled to that line and then water added.—M. L.

Many Have Stake In Industry

NEW YORK -- What are American stockholders like? Rich widows and corporation executives? City slickers and smalltown bankers?

We are told today that 20 million of the nation's 197.5 million people own one or more stocks. A profile can be drawn from the 1965 census of shareownership by the New York Stock Exchange. From it emerges answers to such questions as:

Who owns stocks? What is his occupation? His education? His income? His age? How did he get his first shares? What percentage of the nation's women, of men, of minor own stocks? In what size city do shareholders live?

At 20 million, the stockholder population has gained 18 per cent over a like census in 1962 showing 17 million, and more than three times the 6.5 million tallied in 1952.

The census is based on a poll of a sampling of shareowners of 6,724 publicly owned corporations with 18 billion shares outstanding. At the market value early this year the total holdings of individuals would have brought $400 billion. The other $250 billion of these shares were held by financial institutions, trust funds, corporations and the like.

Cities in the 2,000 to 5,000 class have the largest percentage owning stocks. Of all those who live in these places 15.5 per cent own shares, up from 12.5 per cent in 1962. Second largest is the 13.9 per cent of those living in cities in the 100,000 to 500,000 class. They are closely followed by the 13.5 per cent of dwellers in 15,000 to 100,000 cities. Of all Americans living in cities larger than 500,000 some 12 per cent own stock. In rural areas and towns under 2,500 just 3.4 per cent are stockholders.

The occupation of shareowners also have some percentages that may surprise you. There are 3,136,000 in professional and technical work, or 37.4 per cent of all those in the country so employed. This tops the class usually thought of as stockholders - the managers and officials. There are 2,330,000 of them, or 31.1 per cent of all in this classification. Other owner types by percentage of the total in that occupation are: clerical and sales 21.8 per cent, craftsmen and foremen 10.4 per cent, service workers 5.3 per cent, operatives and laborers 4.3 per cent, and farmers and farm laborers 1.7 per cent.

Almost 60 per cent of Americans with four years or more of college education own shares -- 6,028,000. Of those with one to three years of college 35.4 per cent are stockholders. With four years of high school 15.2 per cent are shareowners; with three years of high school or less 5.6 per cent.

Income groups stack up this way: 60.2 per cent of those making $25,000 or more a year own stocks; 30.2 per cent of the $15,000-$25,000 group; and so on down the scale to 3 per cent with annual incomes under $3,000.

But the census stresses that 11 million shareowners, or 55 per cent of the total, have incomes under $10,000 a year, even if most peoples in this classification aren't stockholders.

The census also shows that one out of every five women shareowners got her first stock as a gift or inheritance, while one out of every 13 men did.

It also shows that 16 per cent of the adult female population of the nation owns one or more shares, and 17 per cent of the adult male population.

There are 705,000 males under 21 who own shares -- 1.8 per cent of the total -- and 575,000 young females -- 1.5 per cent. These youngsters make up 6.5 per cent of the 20 million shareowners. The 3,347,000 owners who are 65 or over make up 16.9 per cent of the total.

The number of minors nearly tripled since 1962; the increase among senior citizens was the second largest, 28 per cent.

The biggest group continues to be the 35 to 54 range with 8.9 million owners, or 45 per cent of the total.

Voting Rights And Legal Wrongs

A Commentary on S. 1564, the proposed "Voting Rights Act of 1965," prepared and distributed as a public service by the Virginia Commission on Constitutional Government.

Q. Are you now referring to the Fifteenth Amendment?

A. Yes, for that Amendment — the Amendment relied upon to support the constitutionality of the proposed legislation — prohibits the denial or abridgement of the right to vote on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

That Amendment does not, however, abolish non-discriminatory literacy tests or other performance qualifications nor does it give to Congress any right to set the qualifications for voters, whether they vote in Federal, State or local elections.

A. But the Attorney General of the United States, Nicholas de B. Katzenbach, testified before the Senate Committee on the Judiciary on March 23, 1965, that:

"Far from impinging on constitutional rights — in purpose and effect, the bill implements the explicit command of the Fifteenth Amendment that 'the right . . . to vote shall not be denied or abridged . . . by any State on account of race (or) color.'"

A. We have already discussed how the bill would prohibit any test or qualifications once Section 3 became operative. How can the Attorney General make such a claim?

That the framers of the Fifteenth Amendment intended to give to the Federal Government power to set voting qualifications is absolutely rebutted by the legislative history of that Amendment.

Consider the following facts.

The House of Representatives of the 40th Congress was first to pass the 15th Amendment. When the House version was reported to the Senate, that body amended the original House version to ban discrimination based on nativity, property, and education. The House refused by a vote of 133 to 37 to accept this version. Congressional Globe, 40th Cong., third sess., February 15, 1869, p. 1226.

The Senate, at this point, rather than delay longer the passage of the resolution, receded from its amendment. Id., page 1329. The final conference report contained the present text of the 15th Amendment. Id., at page 1623. A constant criticism heard while the debate was going on in the Senate was to the effect that the Senate was giving way to the House. Id., at page 1639.

It would seem to war with reason to suggest that Congress, after having expressly deleted a provision banning educational qualifications from the amendment, should have intended that the watered-down version which finally became the Fifteenth Amendment should encompass a provision which had been expressly deleted.

It is clear that the deletion of the educational voting restriction ban forecloses any congressional action in this field. A State would be wholly within its constitutional prerogatives to provide that none but those who pass the eighth grade, or college, or law school, or who can read English, or Latin, or Greek, can vote at Federal or State elections.

Again, it must be said: In order to justify its attack on State literacy tests, which are not prohibited by the Fifteenth Amendment, the Federal Government is forced to rely upon a questionable presumption.

The State can be found guilty of denying the right to vote, not only in Federal elections, but in State elections also by an administrative official outside the judicial system. The only times that the Federal Government constitutionally can get involved in such an area is where there has been a judicial determination in the first instance that the Constitution of the United States has been violated. (To be continued.)

Wistfulness About Viet Nam Position

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been a kind of wistfulness about the Johnson administration's position on Viet Nam, a kind of repeated sigh for peace, but peace remains as elusive as a devil dancing on a rainbow.

Mixed in with the wistfulness, as American actions in Asia get tougher by the week, there is a rather gentlemanly restraint about all the administration says.

In fact, the administration has spoken of the U.S. actions, bombings and all, as restrained.

President Johnson almost never gets rough about the problem. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara uses an almost impersonal military jargon. And Secretary of State Dean Rusk, an apostle of understatement, sticks to a low key.

The Johnson administration's explanation for almost five months of bombing North Viet Nam, and building up U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, has been a sort of: "All we want to do is knock some sense into their heads."

The idea is that if the Communists get hit with enough bombs, or suffer enough losses in ground fighting, they'll finally catch on to the notion that peace is better.

But after all these months the Communists — North Vietnamese, Red Chinese, and Russians — must have hard heads because Wednesday Rusk complained: "The other side is obviously not ready for peace."

But then they never have been although the administration seems to keep thinking they might be. But if Rusk sounded melancholy, perhaps as much as at any time since the bombings began Feb. 7, it's no wonder.

The Russians Wednesday refused a visit by the British Commonwealth team created a few days ago to visit all the interested parties, the United States, Russia, Red China, North Viet Nam.

The mission's goal was to see if anyone wanted to talk peace. But what the Russians did Wednesday was more than matched two days ago by the Red Chinese who hooted at the peace team.

So that about finishes that. What next? More war is about all that's left, and harder.

Rusk acknowledged that air attacks alone cannot bring peace. By itself this would be a very mild statement, indeed.

But the restrained and gentlemanly Rusk added something which could be interpreted as meaning: If all the American military effort so far hasn't been able to persuade the Communists, then the United States will have to step up the war even more although he put it in his usual, understated way: "We must hope they know —as we do — that increased aggression would be costly far beyond the worth to the aggressor."

No mandarin could have been more courteous in telling an enemy to watch out. Some unidentified U.S. officials were a little more pointed, saying they expect a rough summer.

And yet, it's all like a needle stuck in a record, nothing really new after all the bombing and all the other American efforts.

Last February, about two weeks after Johnson had ordered the bombings to begin, The Associated Press reported he was not convinced the Communists were ready for serious negotiations.

On March 25 he was saying the United States "seeks no wider war" although by then the bombing had widened the war from South Viet Nam to North Viet Nam and this week U.S. bombers struck within 80 miles of China.

In April Johnson offered unconditional peace talks — although he did tag on a condition by insisting South Viet Nam must remain free and independent — but the North Vietnamese and the Red Chinese said nothing doing.

In May Johnson admitted the situation in Viet Nam was a "mess." His administration decided to push harder. He said "our only object is to prove that force will be met by force, but it will not work."

Patrolman Heads Missouri Squad

MARSHALL, Mo. AP -- The new moderator of the synod of Missouri of the United Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., is George Kahler, Missouri highway patrolman from Willow Springs.

Kahler, an elder in the Willow Springs church, was installed Wednesday as the synod ended a three-day session at Missouri Valley College.

The new vice moderator is the Rev. Isaac N. Scherpenisse, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of Farber. Paul N. Dell, Jefferson City, executive director of the Missouri Society of Professional Engineers, was reelected treasurer; and the Rev. Robert J. Rodisch of Jefferson City was reelected synod executive.

Mrs. V. M. Wilcox, Manchester, was elected president of the Women's Synodical Society of Missouri, which met in joint session with the synod.

Lutherans Agree To Join Others

DETROIT AP -- The Missouri Synod Lutheran Church, in convention here, voted Wednesday to join with other Lutherans in a common organization.

The resolution, which drew only scattered negative voice votes, endorsed a proposed constitution for the Lutheran Council in the USA and endorsed membership in it.

A spokesman said approval next June by the 3.25 million member Lutheran Church in America "appears certain." The American Lutheran church with 2.59 million members endorsed the LCUSA constitution last October.

Wistfulness About Viet Nam Position

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — There has been a kind of wistfulness about the Johnson administration's position on Viet Nam, a kind of repeated sigh for peace, but peace remains as elusive as a devil dancing on a rainbow.

Mixed in with the wistfulness, as American actions in Asia get tougher by the week, there is a rather gentlemanly restraint about all the administration says.

In fact, the administration has spoken of the U.S. actions, bombings and all, as restrained.

President Johnson almost never gets rough about the problem. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara uses an almost impersonal military jargon. And Secretary of State Dean Rusk, an apostle of understatement, sticks to a low key.

The Johnson administration's explanation for almost five months of bombing North Viet Nam, and building up U.S. forces in South Viet Nam, has been a sort of: "All we want to do is knock some sense into their heads."

The idea is that if the Communists get hit with enough bombs, or suffer enough losses in ground fighting, they'll finally catch on to the notion that peace is better.

But after all these months the Communists — North Vietnamese, Red Chinese, and Russians — must have hard heads because Wednesday Rusk complained: "The other side is obviously not ready for peace."

But then they never have been although the administration seems to keep thinking they might be. But if Rusk sounded melancholy, perhaps as much as at any time since the bombings began Feb. 7, it's no wonder.

The Russians Wednesday refused a visit by the British Commonwealth team created a few days ago to visit all the interested parties, the United States, Russia, Red China, North Viet Nam.

The mission's goal was to see if anyone wanted to talk peace. But what the Russians did Wednesday was more than matched two days ago by the Red Chinese who hooted at the peace team.

So that about finishes that. What next? More war is about all that's left, and harder.

Rusk acknowledged that air attacks alone cannot bring peace. By itself this would be a very mild statement, indeed.

But the restrained and gentlemanly Rusk added something which could be interpreted as meaning: If all the American military effort so far hasn't been able to persuade the Communists, then the United States will have to step up the war even more although he put it in his usual, understated way: "We must hope they know — as we do — that increased aggression would be costly far beyond the worth to the aggressor."

No mandarin could have been more courteous in telling an enemy to watch out. Some unidentified U.S. officials were a little more pointed, saying they expect a rough summer.

And yet, it's all like a needle stuck in a record, nothing really new after all the bombing and all the other American efforts.

Last February, about two weeks after Johnson had ordered the bombings to begin, The Associated Press reported he was not convinced the Communists were ready for serious negotiations.

On March 25 he was saying the United States "seeks no wider war" although by then the bombing had widened the war from South Viet Nam to North Viet Nam and this week U.S. bombers struck within 80 miles of China.

In April Johnson offered unconditional peace talks — although he did tag on a condition by insisting South Viet Nam must remain free and independent — but the North Vietnamese and the Red Chinese said nothing doing.

In May Johnson admitted the situation in Viet Nam was a "mess." His administration decided to push harder. He said "our only object is to prove that force will be met by force, but it will not work."

Patrolman Heads Missouri Squad

MARSHALL, Mo. AP -- The new moderator of the synod of Missouri of the United Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., is George Kahler, Missouri highway patrolman from Willow Springs.

Kahler, an elder in the Willow Springs church, was installed Wednesday as the synod ended a three-day session at Missouri Valley College.

The new vice moderator is the Rev. Isaac N. Scherpenisse, pastor of the United Presbyterian Church of Farber. Paul N. Dell, Jefferson City, executive director of the Missouri Society of Professional Engineers, was reelected treasurer; and the Rev. Robert J. Rodisch of Jefferson City was reelected synod executive.

Mrs. V. M. Wilcox, Manchester, was elected president of the Women's Synodical Society of Missouri, which met in joint session with the synod.

Lutherans Agree To Join Others

DETROIT AP -- The Missouri Synod Lutheran Church, in convention here, voted Wednesday to join with other Lutherans in a common organization.

The resolution, which drew only scattered negative voice votes, endorsed a proposed constitution for the Lutheran Council in the USA and endorsed membership in it.

A spokesman said approval next June by the 3.25 million member Lutheran Church in America "appears certain." The American Lutheran church with 2.59 million members endorsed the LCUSA constitution last October.

Supplies of gasoline and drugs in many retail outlets also were dwindling fast in this fourth day of a "holiday" taken by truck drivers of Local 107 in southeastern Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Spokesmen for Food Fair, Atlantic and Pacific, and Penn Fruit, the other giant chains in the area, reported their stores in the same boat.

Asks U. N. Intervention

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate hears appeals today for peace-seeking intervention by the United Nations in Viet Nam and for full-scale congressional debate on whether the United States should fight a Korea-type war there.

Legislature Clears Deck

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Both houses of the Missouri Legislature put in an active day Wednesday, passing several important measures and trimming calendars for the final week of the session.

The Senate passed a bill to increase aid to junior colleges by $1.2 million a year. It goes back to the House where an increase of $2.8 million was approved earlier.

Passed and sent to the Governor was a bill to increase from four to six the membership of the State Highway Commission. This will enable Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to make good his pledge to appoint members from St. Louis and Kansas City metropolitan areas.

Another administration bill, one calling for a council on outdoor recreation, was passed by the Senate.

Groceries Running Low

PHILADELPHIA AP -- The city's four largest grocery chains said today most of their stores will be without supplies by Friday night if the wildcat strike of some 12,000 members of Teamsters Local 107 isn't settled.

"Our stocks are going very fast," said Blayney J. Barton, an Acme Markets executive. "Some stores should start to run out of supplies tomorrow."

Supplies of gasoline and drugs in many retail outlets also were dwindling fast in this fourth day of a "holiday" taken by truck drivers of Local 107 in southeastern Pennsylvania and Delaware.

Spokesmen for Food Fair, Atlantic and Pacific, and Penn Fruit, the other giant chains in the area, reported their stores in the same boat.

PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

THURSDAY, JUNE 24, 1965

Keep in the love of God, and wait for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, to bring you to eternal life. Those whom you pity in their uncertainty, save, snatching them out of the fire. (Jude 21-22, Goodspeed)

PRAYER: Our Father, may we have divine compassion for others -- compassion which will draw them to Thee for new life, new decision, new service. May our hunger to serve Thee never diminish until Thy will rules in the hearts of all men and nations. Through Christ our Redeemer. Amen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Route 1
Sikeston, Mo.
June 15, 1965

Sikeston Standard Newspaper
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir,

Will you please tell me how a city with the population that Sikeston has cannot find jobs for disadvantaged youths for this neighborhood Youth Corps while a town a few miles to the west was able to employ 34 youths?

There are many advantages to this program as was printed out by your newspaper recently. When we have something that is worthwhile for our youth, why don't we take advantage of it. There are city parks, public library, city government, streets, etc. They can surely use a few of our boys and girls who need these jobs badly. The federal government pays their wages, so why are the employers worrying.

Respectfully,
Paul V. Jackson
Route 1,
City

P. S. Don't tell me that the City Government has co-operated. I've checked.

Full name of Michelangelo, celebrated artist, was Michelangelo Buonarroti.

THURSDAY, JUNE 24, 1965

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Route 1
Sikeston, Mo.
June 15, 1965

Sikeston Standard Newspaper
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Sir,

Will you please tell me how a city with the population that Sikeston has cannot find jobs for disadvantaged youths for this neighborhood Youth Corps while a town a few miles to the west was able to employ 34 youths?

There are many advantages to this program as was printed out by your newspaper recently. When we have something that is worthwhile for our youth, why don't we take advantage of it. There are city parks, public library, city government, streets, etc. They can surely use a few of our boys and girls who need these jobs badly. The federal government pays their wages, so why are the employers worrying.

Respectfully,
Paul V. Jackson

P. S. Don't tell me that the City Government has co-operated. I've checked.
